CALIFORNIA NO LONGER HOSTILE TO WILSON'S IDEAS--JOHNSON WILL HAVE SOME EXPLAINING TO DO

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1919 by Times Publishing Company.)

ENROUTE TO RENO, NEV., Sept. 22—President Wilson leaves the Pacific coast triumphant. That is an extreme statement to make and will be disputed by those who look at the League of Nations as a political question or its somehow akin to the prestige or political fortunes of Woodrow Wilson. But the idea, not necessarily the man, has triumphed. Such demonstrations of enthusiasm not only but such quick perception of the logic of the argument, such readiness to accept the plain language of the treaty of peace rather than the inferences and implications read into the document by men who seek not its revision or perfection but its absolute defeat, such spontaneous acclaim as the Pacific coast has given editorially, vocally, politically and otherwise can have but one meaning to anyone who forgets the hypocrisies of both the Democratic and Republican parties and respective demagogues and observes mass impulse, mass reasoning and mass demand.

In many respects the speech which President Wilson made at the Auditorium in Los Angeles was the best of his whole tour. Not because so many Johnson men stood with him and cheered, not because Republicans predominated in the meeting, not because California felt proud that she had cast the deciding electoral votes which made Woodrow Wilson President, but because the sheer farce of his explanations on Shantung, on the question of six votes for Britain to America's one, and the policy of isolation or partnership caused a deep reaction against the men who are now believed to have misrepresented the contents of the treaty itself, an unforgivable thing in an intelligent electorate like California.

Senator Hiram Johnson is the strongest political figure in the state. Were there an election tomorrow and domestic issues involved, he would carry the state but his own friends have told me that they feared he would not be successful on the League issue if it were put to a vote and they were not altogether sure some permanent damage had not been done to his remarkable prestige by his tactics in the League of Nations controversy.

Practically every argument which Senator Johnson made but one was answered by the President while he was in California. Mr. Wilson failed to explain why American troops stayed in Siberia and why more of them were still sailing for Russia. The anti-league newspapers are offering that concrete fact of the present as against the President's promises of the future and the President has not yet given an idea of what the United States government is driving at in its Siberian policy.

But as to the other points made by Mr. Johnson, while the President did not mention the junior Senator from California by name, nevertheless his audiences seemed familiar with the Senator's arguments and were intensely eager to hear Mr. Wilsin's answers. The President made even clearer than he did at San Francisco the background of the Shantung award.

He told how Germany, Russia, France and Japan had each compelled China in 1898 to give them territory for long periods of time, most of them for 99 years, and how helpless China was forced to give up her sovereignty in these leased territories. He told how the United States under William McKinley and Secretary John Hay did not make a protest and he said that it was because Messrs. McKinley and Hay would not have done so if they could but under international law they could only express their interest with respect to American trade and equality of commercial opportunity. He explained, too, how Japan forced Russia out of Port Arthur in the Russo-Japanese war and how Russia ceded the territory to Japan, while America through President Roosevelt helped to bring about the peace negotiations at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, felt powerless to interfere. Now Mr.

RIOTING MARKS STRIKE; SENATE ORDERS PROBE

OUTBREAKS CAUSE OF FATALITIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23.—Investigation of the steel strike by the senate labor committee was ordered today by the senate. A resolution by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, providing for the inquiry and authorizing a report as to whether any remedial federal action could be taken was adopted without a roll call.

Senator Kenyon said it was proposed to call leaders representing both employers and employes to Washington in an effort to determine the cause of the strike. Visits by the committee to the steel centers are not planned, he said.

Senator Kenyon announced later that the investigation would be begun Thursday and that the first witness would be Chairman Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, and John J. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the national committee organizing the steel workers.

FARRELL, PA., Sept. 23.—Two persons were shot, neither seriously, and several others were injured in renewed rioting here today when state police and local authorities dispersed crowds that had congregated on the main street.

Last night one man was shot and killed, a state trooper was shot and seriously wounded, and another state policeman was injured on the head with a brick.

This morning's melee did not last long, the authorities acting with much vigor.

After the trouble was over, several thousand strikers and their sympathizers went across the Ohio state line, several miles from Farrell, to hold a mass meeting. The burgess of Farrell has forbidden the holding of meetings in the borough.

RIOTS AT NEW CASTLE

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 23.—With state constabulary 150 deputy sheriffs and scores of policemen patrolling the streets about the steel plants here, the situation following serious riots last night was slightly improved early today. Nine persons, two women and seven men were shot last night in addition to the stabbing of one policeman and injuring of another with a club in an attack on the plant of the Carnegie Steel Company. Three of the injured likely will die, it is said.

Rioting assumed serious proportions late yesterday when rioters stoned workmen on their way to the mills. Five workmen were caught against a stone wall and were being stoned by a mob when guards set out to rescue them.

A pitched battel took place before the guards rescued the injured men. The two policemen were injued when they attempted to disperse a crowd which refused to allow workers to enter the Shenango works of the American Sheet & Tin Plate ompany. The riots followed the appearance of several hundred men said to be from Youngstown, Ohio.

Thirty persons were last night charged with rioting and carrying concealed weapons. With the arrival of a score of state constabulary the strike zone will be cleaned up here today, it is believed. Mills are being operated at about 85 percent capacity, according to plant officials.

CROWD ASSAULTS WORKMEN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Disturbances which began in the vicinity of the Lackawanna Steel Company plant last night were continued this morning. A master mechanic was set upon by a crowd and severely beaten. A riot call brought out the police and two men were arrested, charged with rioting.

Switchmen of the South Buffalo Railway today quit work when ordered to move cars into the Lackawanna Steel Company's yards.

STRIKE LEADER INJURED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 23.—J. E. McCadden, representing the national committee in charge of the strike in the Youngstown district was severely injured yesterday when he fell into a ditch at the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company, while making an inspection of the plant. According to announcement at strike headquarters this morning, Mr. McCadden is confined to his bed.

500 DEPUTIES SWORN IN

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 23.—Five hundred deputies were sworn in today to maintain order at the Weirton, West Virginia, plant of the Weirton Steel Company, across the river from here, which is the only plant of the Steubenville district operating. Announcement of placing the additional force of police in the town was made by the company which had learned of a proposed demonstration by strikers from this city, who were planning a parade to Weirton. No strangers are now allowed to enter the town, which is company property. Strike leaders at local headquarters stated today that railroad men operating cars in the Weirton yards withdrew this morning.

GIRARD PLANT CLOSED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 23.—Announcement was made by officials of the A. M. Byers Company, Girard, today that the plant has closed owing to a shortage of unskilled laborers who are striking. The company employes about 1,000 men.

HOGAN TO SPEAK

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 23.—Timothy S. Hogan, Columbus will address the Catholic Club here tonight on the occasion of the election of new officers for that organization.

Desperate Efforts Made Possible German Retreat To Line Of Vesle

Rapid gathering of troops from all quarters saved the German army in the Marne pocket after the American and French troops had broken the line south of Soissons July 18, 1918. By desperate fighting the German masses were able to make good the retreat to the line of the Vesle.

Ludendorff pays tribute to the skill with which Marshal Foch surprised him. He has explained that he had been warned six days before that such a counter-attack was being prepared and he had expected it when he launched his drive of July 15 against Rheims. He had concentrated good divisions, but they had been taken utterly by surprise and it cost him much effort to repair the damage done and restore the discipline of his stiff great military machine.

The result, however, was far more costly than the evacuation of the salient. His losses had been great. His far-flung line had been shaken by the sacrifices necessary to save the situation. He had to decide that he could make no more drives, not even for the Channel ports which he had so coveted.

One Reason For Defeat Of July 18 Was That Men Did Not Believe Enemy Would Attack; Reserves Came Up To Front Tired Out.

KNEW THE DAY OF SUCCESSFUL GERMAN OFFENSIVES HAD PASSED

By GENERAL ERICH LUDENDORFF

By July 17 Marshal Foch had attacked without success on the battle-field of Champagne, in the Forest de la Montagne de Rheims, between the Ardre (southwest of Rheims) and the Marne, and also south of the Marne; and had continued the offensive southwest of Rheims and south of the Marne on the 18th with the same results, but between the Ourcq and the Aisne he had won considerable ground.

(The Ourcq is about halfway between the Aisne and the Marne. Here troops of the American 1st and 2nd Divisions and the French Moroccan division were the assaulting forces.)

After a short and sharp artillery preparation and under a smoke screen he attacked with massed infantry and a stronger force of tanks than had ever before been concentrated in one place. For the first time, small, low fast tanks, that allowed the use of machine guns above the corn, were used; our machine guns were hindered by it except when they were mounted on special tripods. There again the effect of the fire from the tanks was insignificant. (Ludendorff constantly tries to minimize the power of the tanks. He had provided few for his own army.)

Tanks were also observed which were used solely for the transport of men. These passed through our lines, put down their passengers, with machine guns behind them, to form machine gun nests, and then promptly returned for reinforcements.

Our infantry had not stood firm at all points, and in particular the division southwest of Soissons that had been considered s reliable, had given way. The gap rapidly widened, especially towards Soissons. (American troops advanced three to six miles and took 4,000 prisoners and thirty guns.)

Further south there were other deep dents in the line. The three divisions in reserve here, although not fresh and thrown into action piecemeal, were able to hold the enemy up on the heights southwest of Soissons and to the west of Parcy-Tigny, as well as at the Saviers bottom. (On the edge of the Villers-Cotterets forest.) Between the Ourcq and the Marne the attacks were repulsed.

The situation north of the Ourcq made a withdrawal of the troops fighting on the south bank necessary. They were closely followed up by the enemy.

THEFT OF $240,000 BARED; THREE ARRESTS MADE; PART OF MONEY FOUND

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Three men; one of them John Wojda, clerk in the Chicago post office, who is said to have planned the robbery, were arrested here early today, charged with stealing $240,000 of a shipment of $415,000 last Thursday from the Federal Reserve Bank here to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, at Whiting, Indiana. Of the stolen funds $90,620 was recovered. The remainder according to an alleged confession of two of the men, was abandoned at the outskirts of Chicago, when the automobile in which they were returning from Whiting, broke down.

A "piece of police luck" is pointed to as responsible for the arrest of the men. Chicago city detectives, unearthed the postal robbery when two of the men, Leo and Walter Philipps, brothers, 25 and 20 years old, respectively, were arrested in connection with the robbery of a saloon in which approximately $500 was obtained.

Prior to the arrests no announcement of the big hold-up had been made. Informed by a "stool pigeon" that the Philipps brothers were involved in the saloon robbery, which occurred later in the day, of the hold-up at Whiting, the officers at first believed they had stumbled on a big pay roll or bank robbery, when one found $20,000 in the elder Philipps' pocket.

Questioning developed, according to the officers, details of the entire program.

FOURTH MAN SOUGHT

A fourth man, said to be the owner of a small farm near Chicago, was being sought early today. Police say they believe most of the missing money was buried on his property. He is said to have been at Whiting with the Philipps brothers. R. H. Mundelle and J. E. Sullivan, postal inspectors in charge of the federal investigation, said they believed Wojda sent a "fake" bag similar in appearance to the money bags in the consignment to Whiting.

"A man named Joe Schwarz, employed at the station, was to take the bags in a hand cart to the post office," the inspectors said. "He got the wrong bag and took it to the post office, from where it was to be taken to the bank of Whiting and from there to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"When he returned to the station the bag containing the money was gone."

The inspectors said Schwarz did not know the bag's content.

They believe Wojda so marked the bag that robbers could not mistake it.

OKLAHOMA TOWN CONTROLLED BY MOB; RECKLESS SHOOTING

DRUMRIGHT, OKLA., Sept. 23.—Mayor W. E. Nicodemus, Councilman John Baxter and Chief of Police Jack Ayres, detained by a mob last night, today were released and were back on their jobs.

TULSA, OKLA., Sept. 23.—Orders were received here today by Major James A. Bell, commander of the third Oklahoma regiment of state troops to have his command ready to entrain for Drumright. Orders to entrain have not yet been received.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Sept. 23.—All efforts to reach Drumright, Oklahoma, where rioting was reported last night in telephone messages to this city, failed early today through lack of telephone or telegraph facilities. Telephone and telegraph companies assert their wires have been taken over or cut by the mob which is demanding the resignation of Drumright city officials, according to last night's telephone report.

Telephone messages from Oilton, Oklahoma, today stated that the Oilton chief of police has started for Drumright with several deputies following a request from persons there who reported that the mob was shooting recklessly in the streets.

One unconfirmed report from Oilton, stated that the mob was attempting to bur the Bell telephone building at Drumright. The riot started, according to reports, by telephone strike sympathizers had gotten beyond control. Deputy sheriffs and armed citizens have started for Drumright from Shamrock, Oklahoma, also according to meager advices from there this morning.

CORN CUTTERS DEMAND NINE DOLLARS A DAY

MARION, O., Sept. 23.—A number of corn cutters employed on the Curtis brothers' farm, north of here, yesterday went on strike for nine dollars a day and lodging. This is an increase of one dollar a day over present wages with lodging.

BUTCHERS ON STRIKE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Employes of the sausage and killing department of the Columbus Packing Company went on strike this morning demanding an increase of $2 a day in wages. Strike leaders say 150 men are out, but company officials assert they are employing only about 90 men in those departments.

ITALY DOESN'T WANT JOB OF SETTLING FIUME MUTINY; WANTS ALLIES TO TACKLE IT

LONDON, Sept. 23—Italy which was given a free hand to handle the problem arising out of the seizing of Fiume by Captain Gabriele D'Annunzio, as a domestic affair, is said in reports current here to have made an appeal to the allied powers to take the matter off her hands and send a force to Fiume to expel the insurgent troops from the city. It is claimed Italy has stipulated that if such a force is sent to the Adriatic city, it must not include Italian units.

It is improbable, according to report, that American troops will participate in such operation if it is ordered, there being no soldiers available for such purpose.

Reports from Fiume seem to be conflicting. One states that General Badoglio, deputy chief of staff, who was sent from Rome to deal with the situation, has established a cordon about the city, while the Jugo-Slav delegation in Paris asserts D'Annunzio forces have extended their zone of occupation, having advanced into Jugo-Slavia seven miles on Sunday. It appears, however, the reported blockade of the city is not particularly effective, it being reported a trainload of supplies has reached Fiume.

IRON MOLDERS WILL TAKE UP STRIKE PROBLEM

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 23.—"That is precisely one of the things that we will consider during our meeting," said Joseph F. Valentine, general president of the International Iron Molders' Union, last night, following the opening session of the general executive board, when asked what effect the steel strike would have on industries in which members of the Iron Molders' Union are engaged. The board expects to be in session throughout the week.

LEAVES ITALIAN CABINET

ROME, Sept. 23.—Tomasso Tittoni, Italian foreign minister, has resigned because of the Fiume incident, according to an announcement by the Giornale D'Italia.

B. & O. EXPRESS DERAILED; ONE KILLED

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., Sept. 23.—The Pittsburgh-New York night express on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, leaving Pittsburgh at 12:20 a. m., was derailed early today near Confluence, Pa., and W. A. Glenn, Connellsville, fireman, of one of the two locomotives drawing the train, was killed. No passengers were injured, railroad officials said. T. H. Miller, Connellsville, engineer, was badly scalded.

FAVOR NEW LABORATORY EQUIPMENT

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Three of the four members of the state emergency board yesterday voted favorably on the proposal to make an emergency appropriation of $56,130 for the Ohio State University to install new laboratory equipment and to employ additional instructors. University authorities expect that Senator Davis, chairman of the senate finance committee, who could not attend the meeting on account of illness, will also approve of the appropriation. Four favorable votes are required by law. Chairman King, of the house finance committee, withheld his vote.

If the appropriation is granted, the university will employ 31 additional instructors, none of them will be paid over $1,500. Barracks formerly used by aviator students on the campus will be equipped for chemistry laboratory purposes, it was said.

RANKS OF STRIKERS GROWING

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

OHIO steel mills today were feeling the full force of the national steel strike called yesterday. The second day of the walk-out found the mills in Ohio's principal steel centers either completely closed or operating on a very limited scale.

Only two of the big steel companies in the Youngstown district were making any attempt to operate today. They were the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and the Carnegie Steel Company. Both companies admitted they were seriously crippled.

The Steubenville steel district was idle, with the exception of the plant of the Weirton Steel Company at Weirton, West Virginia, opposite Steubenville. Five hundred deputies were sworn in there to maintain order.

Union leaders claim 25,000 steel workers are out in and around Cleveland, but company officials say this figure is exaggerated. They claim that all men not at work did not go out on strike, but were forced into idleness by the walk-out of their fellow workers. Ore handlers at two Cleveland docks went on strike last night and labor leaders said 250 ore handlers at five docks are now out.

QUIET IN OHIO

With thousands of men out, no trouble had been reported up to noon today. Blows were struck last evening when 500 men congregated at the main entrance gate of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company at Youngstown. Arrival of police and deputy sheriffs, armed with riot guns, had a quieting effect, however, before the efforts of pickets developed into a riot. A few shots were fired but no one was reported seriously injured.

The smaller steel centers, where the men did not go out, today reported everything quiet and work normal.

(By The Associated Press)

THE second day of the great struggle between the labor unions and the United States Steel Corporation opened with the question as to the extent to which the industry has been affected by the strike still uncertain, confused as it is by the conflicting claims of the leaders on either side. That the industry has been gravely crippled in the great centers of Pittsburg, Chicago and Youngstown was certain, and early reports today recorded several gains for the strikers.

In the Pittsburgh district several of the Carnegie Steel Company's plants were closed and the Braddock and Rankin plants of the American Steel &

Local Plant Unaffected

Because there are no plants of the United States Steel Corporation in Portsmouth, there is little chance of this city being affected by the steel workers' strike that started Monday in plants operated by the corporation throughout the country.

Officials of the local steel mills see little prospect of a sympathy strike of steel workers here. It is said that few of the men employed in the local plant are unionized, officials said Monday, and most of the men are satisfied with wages and working conditions.

At the local plant it was stated this morning that it was running full tilt in all departments and with every man at his post.

WILL DANCE ON EDGE OF ROOF

Al Lemon, in several characteristic poses, and dog "Pete," one of stagelands most comical canine actors.

Upon the edge of the topmost cornice of the Anderson Brothers' department store building, at Chillicothe and Third streets, at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning Al Lemon, champion wooden shoe endurance dancer of the world, will risk his life, just that residents of Portsmouth may be thrilled.

One hundred feet above the pavement, he will give an exhibition of the most difficult steps known to his branch of the dancing art. A slightest slip, the merest inequality in the platform, or the most trivial sagging of the support, would hurl him to death in the crowds below.

A rollicking selection, by one of the world's most celebrated bands, will be played by a Victrola furnished by the Kay Graham Company, 810 Gallia street.

Lemon is one of the brightest stars twinkling with Al Coleman's "Tip Top Merry Makers" at the Sun Theatre tomorrow, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Miss Edna De Saulles, one of the prettiest of the ten young women who dance and frolic in the production, will exhibit several of the most handsome articles of fall and winter apparel in the exclusive stock of the Anderson Brothers' store.

Chief of police Clark will have extra officers on the scene at Third and Chillicothe streets Thursday morning to handle the crowds. It is expected that members of the Boy Scouts will be asked to aid in preventing traffic accidents and to give other assistance.

Lemon has held his title of champion hard shoe endurance dancer of the world for twelve years. He won the title at a contest at Madison Square Garden, New York City, participated in by the greatest dancing stars of stageland.

At the Sun Theatre Friday night, Lemon will be open to challenges from all comers, professional and non-professional alike. It is expected that he will have several challengers. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winners by the management of the Sun.

The audience will act as the judge, applause to determine who is the winner. It is explained that because of this feature, it is not assured, by any means, that the most skilled dancer will win, because favor of the audience will be the sole determining factor.

MANY ATTENDED CELEBRATION

Portsmouth colored folk were not alone in celebrating the 51th anniversary of Emancipation Day at Millbrook Park Monday, as there were a number of visitors in attendance from Ironton, Ashland and Greenup. The afternoon's base ball game was not played with Greenup on account of the all day rain, but quite a number spent the afternoon skating.

In the evening there was dancing and skating. Fifty couples or more enjoyed the dance program which started at 8:30 and ended at 12:30. Anderson's five piece orchestra furnished the music for the dancers.

The committee in charge of the program for the park was composed of Troy Jamison, Paul Melvin and Reece Robinson.

"GET AMERICA RIGHT FIRST," URGES SPEAKER AT BUSINESS MEN'S MEETING

Claiming that the unrest and unsettled conditions in the United States today were the direct result of the fact that the nation's executive spent so much time away from the national capitol, minding some other nation's business, F. J. Raymond spoke to the Business Men's Luncheon in the Elk's Club Tuesday noon.

"Get America Right First," said Mr. Raymond, adding, "and what I want most to impress most of all on you men is this: Put yourself into your business. Mind your own business, and don't meddle in other people's. Then your business will succeed and the other person's too. The League of Nations is a "League of Notions", but I mustn't talk too much about that, I get too hot."

"You and I are jointly responsible for the unrest of present conditions, also. We have talked too much to the man who made money, forgetting that there is another requisite in the successful man's life aside from making money. That requisite is a happy home and the confidence of you fellowmen.

"Here in Portsmouth you must not judge the successful man by the bank account. The really successful man is the happy man, the man who has reared or is rearing a family, and who is putting forth every effort to make that family happy. That is the successful man, and I don't care what business he is in, whether he is driving a brewery wagon, or running a great factory. There is a great deal more in life than just earning dollars.

"My business is to show men how to get the best out of life. I am not an efficiency expert. I am not a salesmanship expert, or any other kind of a specialist. I am simply showing men how to make the best of what opportunities they have.

"A man is all right when he uses what he has, to do what he wants to do. The man that does that is the successful man. Every day is a new world, a new fight, a new opportunity. Progress, that's the game to play, men. Don't have your headlight on the hind end, hook it on in front. That's where a headlight belongs. I don't care a [illegible] what you [illegible] the use you make of what you know that counts.

"The [illegible] of a man's life is his family circle. You cannot get any more out of life than you get out of that family circle. [illegible] it all [illegible] outside, he'll be [illegible] to live with in his own home.

Some Raymondgraphs

If you can't say something good about Portsmouth, shut up, or get out.

Progress, that's the game, men, and play it for all you're worth.

Don't talk like a tree. Talk straight and hard.

This is the educated person: The man who knows what he wants, where he can get it, and what to do with it after he gets it.

Many a man that isn't fit to live with in his own home, is all smiles to the fellow he wants to impress.

There's a great deal more in life than just earning dollars.

Is your home steam heated, or heart heated?

You'll never get any more out of life than you get out of your own family circle.

To be promoted, you must be prepared.

Has Landed Fine Job

Earl O. King, a former Portsmouth boy has accepted the responsible position as superintendent of the Chrome and Magnesite Brick Plant of the Cerro de Pasco Copper Corporation, at Lima, Peru, South America, which is the largest copper mining and smelting company in the world.

King will be in South America two years before returning to the States. He sailed from New York City July 18 going via the Panama Canal and down the Pacific coast the trip taking three weeks.

King is the son of Clyde King, formerly in the brick making business in this city.

Constitution Day Is Observed By School

At the High School this morning interesting exercises were held celebrating the 132nd anniversary of the adoption of the United States constitution. Miss Margaret Ricker gave a talk showing the progress made by the government since the signing of the constitution up to the present day. She pointed out the stability of the constitution by showing that of the 1700 or 1800 proposals, only 18 were accepted as amendments to the constitution.

[illegible] then gave a reading of letters by Benjamin Franklin, [illegible] the constitution, followed by Miss [illegible] who gave readings of the [illegible] of the signing. Miss Helen [illegible] then read a selection of [illegible] of general interest at that time, and recited the "Ship of State."

Representatives of the Daughters of The American Revolution, headed by Mrs. Drew, presented to the High School a handsome framed copy of the United States Constitution, with amendments, and Mrs. Drew said in part: "We must educate the people of our government; and we must study the constitution for it. We therefore ask that you study and seek to understand the meaning of this constitution."

After repeated applause, Mr. [illegible], with a few appropriate remarks, accepted the copy in the name of the school, and thanked Mrs. Drew and her co-workers for their kind consideration.

Ballot Bids Opened

At the meeting of the Board of [illegible] bids [illegible] were [illegible] printing of [illegible] ballots and [illegible] for the November election.

Two bids were [illegible] for the printing of the [illegible] of electors. The Keystone Press bid $140 per page and Joseph F. Kerrigan bid $150. The contract was awarded to Kerrigan.

Only one bid was received for the printing of the [illegible] ballots. There are about six kinds to be printed. Kerrigan's bid averaged about $10 per thousand. The bids were as low as $8.75 and as high as $12.

Two bids were received for poll books, tally sheets and other supplies. The Columbus Blank Book Manufacturing Company bid $410.58 and was awarded the job. The Johnson Watson Company, Dayton, bid $457.85.

DELEGATION PRESENTS THE CLAIMS OF COUNTY FOR NEW STATE INSTITUTION

Representative George E. Matthews, President Alan Jordan, of the board of trade, Judge Frank Sikes and Harry E. Taylor, were in Columbus Monday to appear before the members of the state board of Administration and present arguments as to why Portsmouth and Scioto county should be selected as the site of the new state institution, authorized by the last legislature. A number of possible sites were reviewed, and data presented in regard to accessibility of Portsmouth, freight rates and other advantages of this section. The State Board seemed to be favorably impressed but, of course, will make no decision until it has had an opportunity to personally inspect all sites under consideration.

It is the opinion of the Board that no steps should be taken at the present time to spend the money appropriated and it is unlikely that any indefinite steps toward building will be taken until next year, but the site will probably be selected this Fall. Members of the Board will come here in the not distant future.

The Portsmouth men were most graciously received by the Board and were given full opportunity to present all facts and data. The State Board impressed the visitors as men who were sincerely and earnestly devoted to their work and only anxious to do what was best for the interests of those unfortunates intrusted to their care.

FRANK CARSON AWARDED CONTRACT

On his bid of $39,790 exclusive of plumbing and wiring Frank Carson of this city was Monday night awarded the contract to put up the new building the Pure Milk company will erect at Gallia and Clay street.

It will be fireproof in construction, two stories in height and will be modern in every detail.

On their bid of $3,562 Schmidt and Watkins of this city were awarded the plumbing and wiring contract. The other local bidder was the General Service company.

Among the other bidders on a whole were Wm. Dyer, of Cincinnati; Mayer Contracting Company, of Cincinnati; James Pfeiffer, city; Cuthbert Bros., Cincinnati and A. W. Stoolman, Champaign, Ill.

To Celebrate Rosh Hashanah Thursday

On Thursday, September 25, the festival of the new year (Rosh Hashanah) will be observed by the Jews of the entire world. Like all other Jewish holidays the festival commences at sunset on the preceding day. Orthodox Jews observe two days whereas Reform Jews keep only one. The festival of the new year marks the first of a series of Jewish holidays. Rosh Hashanah is the beginning of a new year and is the time for making bigger resolves.

As usual fitting services will be held Thursday in the Jewish Temple here.

DOYLE PRESENT AT TICKET DRAWING

Scout Billy Doyle was in Cincinnati Monday and was present when the coin was tossed as to where the first two world series games would be played.

"Garry Herrmann flipped one of the new coins and when Louis Comiskey looked at it he said: 'We win. It is tails.'"

"Look again" Mr. Herrmann said as he gazed at the coin and saw it was heads.

"A new half dollar was flipped and this caused the trouble" Billy Doyle said today. "Yes, I figure that Cincinnati has a better chance to win by starting the games at home."

"I spent Saturday and Sunday with Moran. He is full of pepper and says his club will beat the Sox. We have the goods and will prove it in the big series" Moran told Doyle.

The Red leader refused to talk about the pitcher whom he would select to hurl the first game, but down in Cincinnati the fans say it will be Eller or Sallee.

Doyle was also present at the first drawing for world series tickets. He says that 250,000 applications have already been filed. "The drawing is absolutely on the square and the lucky person will get the pasteboards. They are drawn from large wash baskets."

The Democratic gubernatorial aspirants are State Senator Edward I. Edwards, of Jersey City; James R. Nugent, of Newark, and Frank M. Demill, of Newark.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO RAPE CHARGE

Vincent Winzsor, 25, Jackson street ..sworker, after his arrest yesterday on an indictment returned by the recent grand jury charging rape, pleaded not guilty when brought before Judge Thomas in common pleas court, and his trial was assigned for Friday next.

The alleged offense was committed May 31 last, and the complainant in the case is 15-year-old Nellie Bowman of Court street, who, it is said, Winzsor promised to marry, but instead married another girl a few days ago.

In default of $500 bond, the accused was sent to jail pending his trial.

When Albert "Catsy" Sly appeared in common pleas court yesterday and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with failing to provide for his two children, Judge Thomas sent the accused to jail pending an investigation of his case. Sly failed to give a satisfactory explanation of what he did with a roll of bills which he exhibited before his children a few days ago, but refused to divide with them.

Wounds From Rusty Nails Dangerous

Serious results, through blood poisoning, often occur from scratches, cuts or wounds from rusty nails or other metal. Don't run this danger. Protect yourself by having a bottle of Houstonia always at hand.

Dean McKillip, well-known farmer of Clark Co., Ohio, says: "I stepped on a rusty nail which extended halfway through my foot. I applied Houstonia to the wound and bandaged the foot. In a short time the pain got easier. After five days I did not limp and the wound healed nicely. People who use Houstonia for such injuries do not need to fear blood poisoning."

Houstonia (The Original Jones' Liniment) may be freely applied to open cuts, sores or burns without fear. It soothes while it heals. At your druggist. 25c, 50c and $1.00 sizes. Be sure you get the genuine Houstonia with Dr. Jones' picture on the yellow wrapper. The Dr. J. C. Jones Co., S. Charleston, O. —Adv.

Mattress Dealer Pleads Not Guilty To Charge

Charles E. Edwards, prominent Huntington business man, through Attorney Edgar G. Miller yesterday pleaded not guilty to the six indictments returned against him by the recent grand jury charging false labeling of goods and the unlawful sale of goods, and his trial was assigned for Tuesday, Oct. 7.

The indictments were brought at the instance of representatives of Attorney General Price in connection with the sale of matresses to local dealers, it being contended by the state that the filling in the mattresses sold here by the defendant did not meet the requirements of the Ohio statutes. The case promises to be quite a legal battle and its outcome will be watched with much interest as it will set a precedent in the state.

WATER WAS THREE FEET DEEP IN BLANKEMEYER HOME AT ARANSAS PASS, TEXAS, DURING HURRICANE

"We had to wear wet clothes for 48 hours and did not have anything to eat for 24 hours" writes Mrs. Anna Becker mother of Russell Becker of 924 Gay street who was in the home of her brother Dr. H. H. Blankemeyer in Aransas Pass, Texas, Sunday, Sept. 14 when a hurricane swept Corpus Christi and Aransas Pass, wrecking the homes and business places and causing death, suffering and huge property damage.

Relatives here who had been anxiously awaiting some word from Dr. H. H. Blankemeyer of Aransas Pass, Texas, since a telegram was received last week that his sister Mrs. Anna Becker and his daughter Ruth Blankemeyer, were leaving there for this city, were relieved yesterday afternoon when Russell Becker, received a letter from his mother Mrs. Ana Becker, explaining why they had not yet left Texas. The letter also contained some idea as to what damage was suffered by Dr. Blankemeyer and his family, in the hurricane.

In the letter Mrs. Becker explained that they had been unable to get away from Aransas Pass on account of railroad connections. She explained that the mail is brought to the city on horseback from the nearest railroad station which is some distance away.

Water was three feet deep in the Blankemeyer home during the hurricane. Furniture was damaged by the water and the oil which came on top of the water. Oil caused much damage during the big storm. Two houses which Dr. Blankemeyer owned and rented were swept off their foundations but the house in which he lived was not moved, the family escaping without injury.

The homeless lived 100 to a house, and Dr. Blankemeyer and family moved three different times to higher ground, the water coming much higher than expected. Only one life was lost at Aransas Pass, but hundreds were killed at Corpus Christi.

Aransas Pass is under martial law, while many Mexicans are being employed to clean the streets of the debris and wreckage. The many homeless are getting their food supplies from a rescue car, food being given out like in war times.

Mrs. Becker stated in her letter that she would be able to leave Aransas Pass in about a week and that she was coming alone, Dr. Blankemeyer having decided to bring his eleven-year-old daughter when he comes to Portsmouth later, after attending to his property.

Girl Says She Was Locked In Room; Suit Follows

IRONTON, O., Sept. 23.—Mrs. E. W. Bixby was yesterday made the defendant in a $5,000 damage suit filed by Hilda Calloway, a young colored girl who has been in the employ of Mrs. Bixby for the past several years. Miss Calloway is represented by Attorneys E. E. Corn and W. H. Mahoney.

The suit grew out of the mysterious loss of a bunch of keys to various locks of the Bixby home. Mrs. Bixby who was under the impression the colored girl knew of the whereabouts of the keys and in order to substantiate her impression, the colored girl, according to the petition, was locked in a room for half an hour by Mrs. Bixby in an effort to force her (Miss Calloway) to tell what had become of the keys. The plaintiff alleges that the experience she was put through injured her to the amount claimed, $5,000.

A high grade
Cumulative, preferred stock

Price 102 to net around 7%

We offer the remaining portion of The Elbinger Shoe Manufacturing Company, 7% cumulative, preferred stock. It is preferred both as to assets and dividends, non-taxable in Ohio and redeemable in whole or in part at 110 and accrued dividend at any dividend period upon 60 days' notice. Dividends of 1¾ per cent payable quarterly.

This is a going concern with an up-to-date plant located at Lebanon, Ohio, and offices at Cincinnati. They manufacture the well known "Belle of Broadway" shoe.

Certified figures show that the earnings for the last four years averaged over six times the preferred dividend requirements. Judging from the orders now on their books, officers of the company expect the earnings for 1919 to be more than ten times the preferred dividend requirements.

The net quick assets are $300 for every $100. The present financing will place the company free from all liabilities other than the present stock issue. Ample provisions have been made to safeguard the investor. Further information upon request.

You can buy this security on our Partial Payment Plan

Many investors find our Partial Payment Plan a convenient means of purchasing time-tested securities. This plan, dividing the purchase cost into 12 equal monthly payments, often permits the buying of an investment at a time when funds to cover the entire cost are not available.

Write for our new booklet describing the working of our Partial Payment Plan. It is free for the asking.

Jackson News

JACKSON, Sept. 23.—Dr. E. R. Shaffer, supervisor for the Eighth Health District of Ohio, met today with the Board of Health and the Health Council for Jackson county.

The board organized by electing Dr. E. J. Jones, of Oak Hill, president; J. T. Pratt, president pro-tempore, and Dr. A. G. Ray, secretary pro-tempore. The first named has the five year term, David P. Jones, a farmer, the four year term, J. T. Pratt, the three year term, Attorney E. H. Willis, the two year term, and Dr. A. G. Ray, the one year term.

The budget as arranged by the Board of Health is as follows: Health commissioner, $3,000; county nurse, $1,500; clerk, $1,200; deputy commissioner, $1,500; deputy for Wellston, $720; office equipment, $500; medical supplies, $1,500; transportation, $1,500; contingent fund, $2,000, and traveling expenses, $1,500; total, $14,920. The state aid will be $2,000, leaving the county's share at $12,920.

The budget was submitted later to the county council. There were present: E. C. Laird, I. N. Evans, J. D. Patterson, John J. Jenkins, W. A. Dixon, Henry Johnson, Robert H. Jenkins, J. R. Coon, Isaac N. Garrett, N. O. Rhea, Oliver Wildman and Timothy Rollins.

Ben Browning wanted in Franklin county on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor was arrested in this city last night by Sheriff William G. Davis and lodged in jail.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McGhee of Sunbury, Pennsylvania, are the guests of G. W. Harbarger and family, the brother of Mrs. McGhee.

Mrs. Zella Whetsell of Columbus and Orea Weed and his daughter, Miss Blanche Weed of Missouri are the guests of M. J. Weed and family.

They approved of the Budget, except two items. The salary of the clerk was reduced to $900 and the contingent fund to $000, leaving the budget at $11,620. A number of the district councilmen were much opposed to the high figures. J. D. Patterson, of Bloomfield, and John J. Jenkins, of Madison, led the opposition, but they were outvoted, and succeeded in cutting the budget only $1200. Robert H. Jenkins, of Franklin, voted with them occasionally.

The District Board of Health of five members serve gratuitously, but the District Council members get their day's fees paid by their districts. The Health Commissioner will have his office at the county seat. He is given two Fords for his use, for which the item of $100 was allowed. It is not likely that any citizen of this county can be found for this position. He can not practice medicine while in office.

Ormar Harbarger of the Reid Hospital at Washington, D. C., is enjoying his thirty day furlough with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Harbarger of this city.

The following jurors have been drawn for the October term of Probate court, viz: H. A. Robbins, Elmer McCartney, L. V. Leser, Adam Sell, A. L. Ervin, Lee Hartlege, O. H. Gahm, Ralph P. Parks, M. C. Alton, Isaac M. Morgan, G. V. Border, Frank Stevens, I. N. Garrett, Pat Varley, Charles Dungan and H. C. Hatteman. Border has moved to Ross county since his name was put in the wheel. They are summoned for Oct. 2, when a trial by jury has been demanded, by a certain defendent.

. . . And Even in Fierce Coal Service They Return Plus Mileage

Take the big 5-ton trucks of the Queen City Coal Company, of Cincinnati, for example.

Truck weight—five tons; loads—five to six tons; roads—steep and cobbled.

Thus carrying ten and twelve tons constantly, Goodrich De Luxe Truck Tires on these trucks must meet grade and road conditions that impose the greatest of strains on tires.

And yet—

The Queen City Coal Company remarks that in five years of usage of Goodrich De Luxe Tires, the cushions have never failed to exceed the adjustment figure; in fact, in many instances have surpassed it by thousands of miles.

Furthermore, the Queen City Coal Company comments on the "Fair treatment—Prompt Service" policy of Goodrich and Goodrich Distributors—a big factor in the road service of De Luxe Tires.

A tried and trustworthy product—these De Luxe Tires. Buy them for Economy and for Service.

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—United States Steel was among the few important issues to show an uncertain trend at the firm opening of today's stock market, reacting a large fraction. This was soon regained, however, on the strength shown by other favorites, especially equipments, oils, tobaccos and leathers. Before the end of the first half hour gains in Baldwin and American Locomotives, Mexican Petroleum and Texas Company, American Tobacco, Central Leather and various specialties extended from one to seven points. Trading was more active and broader than in yesterday's early period.

Pressure against United States Steel continued during the morning, that stock again reacting to a slight fraction under its early minimum. Other steels were affected to a moderate degree but in equipments, notably Baldwin Locomotive, higher prices prevailed. Yesterday's inquiry for oils was resumed with Texas company leading at an advance of 7 points and tobaccos extended their initial gains with motors and leathers. Low priced rails were active, Wheeling and Lake Erie gaining 3 points. American Smelting and American Telephone represented weak issues at losses of 1½ to 3 points. Call money opening at 6 percent.

Steels and kindred issues were under moderate restraint during the greater part of today's stock market session but the general list was inclined to irregular industrial conditions. Sales approximated 900,000 shares.

The closing was firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—Fresh weakness in the corn market developed today as a result largely of bearish constructions placed on overnight developments in the steel strike. Opening prices, which ranged from ¾ lower to ¼ advance, with December 1.25 to 1.26 and May 1.23½ to 1.23¾, were followed by a moderate set back all around.

The close was strong, 1⅝ to 2¼ net higher, with December 1.28⅝ to 1.28⅞ and May 1.25¼ to 1.25⅜.

Scantiness of receipts made the oats market relatively firm. After opening, ⅛ @ ¼ off to ¼ up, including December at 70½ to 70¼, the market scored a slight general gain.

Provisions were dull and weak.

Provisions subsequently developed strength owing to upturns in the corn market.

How Fat Folks May Become Thin

If you are suddenly becoming stout, or if you have been putting on flesh for years, the cause is generally the same—lack of oxygen carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs mostly in men and women over thirty, but it may be easily treated and without any of the privation most fat people imagine necessary to reduce their weight. Simply go to your druggist and get a box of Physkos. Take five grains after each meal and at bedtime. Wonderful results should be quickly accomplished by this simple treatment.

Be sure, however, you get the genuine Physkos. It is put up in original sealed packages, its pleasant to take and gives prompt results. Fisher & Stelch Pharmacy, Flood & Blake, or any drug store can supply you.

When My Baby Came

WHEN they put that warm, fragrant little bundle into my arms and told me he was perfect, I cried. I was so happy.

Of course, I was going to nurse him. And so I did, for two months.

But he didn't gain weight as fast as he should.

Then the doctor told me not to worry, and that often mothers couldn't nurse their babies.

"The nearest thing to mother's milk I know of," he said, "is Nestlé's Milk Food.

"Of course, he has to have milk in some form—and Nestlé's pure milk only made easier to digest because the tough curds are broken up. To that they add just the right amount of sugar and cereal, so you only add water to Nestlé's, boil it, and your baby has all the nourishment he needs in the safest form."

Then, when he began to gain weight—when the dimples began to show on his knees and his plump little elbows—I knew what happiness really was!

The Nestlé Company sent me free a Mother's Book on how to take care of baby, and enough of the Food for twelve feedings.

If you fill out and send the coupon below, I know they will be glad to help you as they helped me, and as they have been helping mothers all over the world for fifty years.

Nestlé's is pure milk in powder form that is already modified and does not require the further addition of milk. Always pure and safe, always uniform, and free from the dangers of home modification, Nestlé's has stood the test of three generations and has today the largest sale of any baby food in the world.

FREE! Enough Nestlé's for 12 feedings. Send the coupon!

TONIGHT ONLY

"Trail Of The Lonesome Pine"—Not a Moving Picture. The Greatest Love Story Ever Told

Mr. Sowers Makes Report

Scioto Lodge No. 31, I. O. O. F., had a large attendance and splendid meeting Monday evening when three candidates were given the degree of Brotherly Love.

The candidates were Daniel Hensley, Floyd Robinson and Walter Roberts. O. O. Beckman was team master and the work of the degree team as a whole was very fine. Notable in the cast was the work of Chas. Locher as Noble Grand; J. R. Buckley as Warden; Eli Spence as Prelate, and the parts taken by Robert Wallace, Joseph Turner, Clyde King and Isaac Harrison were especially good. Next Monday evening the above candidates, together with R. L. Starling, Walter Nichols, Frank Jarrel and Ross Frye, will be given the third degree. J. R. Buckley is team master.

The lodge entertained two very welcome visitors, Clyde King, an old member of Scioto, formerly in the brick business here, Heinisch & King, but now of Baltimore, Md., and Tennis Nunemaker, of Mason, W. Va. Both made splendid talks. The address of the evening was made by John Sowers, who is just back home from the Sovereign Grand Lodge session at Baltimore. He gave an interesting resume of the proceedings of this great convention and of the monster parade in which thousands of Odd Fellows from all over the United States and Canada participated. Several new applications were received and some candidates elected to membership.

It was announced that at the next meeting of Orient Encampment No. 26, Patriarchal Odd Fellows, the 1st Thursday in October, Bruce Eulette, one of the hustling members of Scioto Lodge, will be given the Golden Rule degree; and the third Thursday the Temple degree. There are quite a class of new candidates forming for Orient Encampment.

An invitation was received from the Sciotoville Lodge of Odd Fellows to visit them Wednesday evening, when they will have quite a class for first degree. All those who make the trip will meet at Millbrook station at 7, sharp.

TRACHOMA EXPERT EXAMINES EYES OF NEARLY 100 CHILDREN

With quietness and ease, and a kindness that won the children's hearts, Surgeon John McMullen, national trachoma expert examined the eyes of nearly 100 children Monday afternoon at the Gay street Dispensary. Several cases were treated. Dr. McMullen said as one of the little patients was lifted from the table where the treatment was administered, "Here's a little lad with well eyes. I know he will never be blind now."

One man who came to be examined was unable to see well enough to walk alone. He illustrated the ravages of the disease not arrested in its youth.

The children who are undergoing the treatment of the great surgeon, here to conduct the Free Clinic, will escape this fate of blindness.

Dr. Ross Hopkins assisted Surgeon McMullen in the treatment room. Miss S. A. Lunt and Miss Zoe McCalan nurses, who accompanied the specialist here are taking part in the clinic work. The Bureau of Community Service nurses are also on the job helping make the clinic a success. The county organization of the Red Cross Home Service department is responsible for the number of county people who attended the clinic. There were patients from Buena Vista, from other parts of the county, from all parts of the city. Miss Emma Hubert and Miss Myrtle Kepler, school nurse, and Miss Carrie Swearingin attended to the assemblage of the city children.

The clinic continues today, treatments and examinations being given each hour.

After treatments the children are taken care of at the Dispensary for a day after which they are taken to their homes and may return to school after a day or two. The treatment is not exactly compulsary and yet no child with the disease is allowed to attend school until they are cured beyond doubt. The spread is too serious a matter to allow carelessness in the matter.

These treatments not only free the children from a disease which might permanently destroy the eyesight, but also prevents the spread of the disease to others.

Some parents who accompanied their children to the clinic Monday after the examination by the expert would be unwilling to believe in the seriousness of the disease and some few left the clinic without accepting the chance to have their children's eyes saved from blindness by the great surgeon. The majority of people though appreciated the good fortune which brought Dr. McMullen to this city on his mission of healing.

Surgeon McMullen is very emphatic in regard to the contagious nature of trachoma. The disease is spread, he states, by the use of common towels, handkerchiefs, washbasins, bed linen, and other articles used in common. In school, children may contract the disease from these articles and also from the hands of children affected, for the latter are apt to rub their eyes and so soil the hands.

Parents with children whose eyes are affected and those who are thought to be diseased are asked to bring their children to the Gay street Dispensary for examinations.

The satisfaction of knowing whether or not the eyes were affected made the attendance at the clinic worth while.

Allies' Heavy Guns Delayed Arrival of Reinforcements.

This was the condition of affairs that was revealed to me in the early [illegible] of the afternoon in Avesnes (He was at Prince Rupprecht's headquarters at Avesnes to consult Marshal Hindenburg).

We now had to deal with the heavy counter-offensive by General Foch against our sharp salient between Soissons and Rheims. English divisions were also taking part. The enemy offensive was mainly directed on Soissons and southwest of Rheims down the Ardre. Foch's intention was clearly to cut off this salient. On the Ardre (southwest of Rheims, where the British were engaged) the attack was repulsed, but towards Soissons it made considerable progress. All countermeasures that could be adopted were already under way.

At the moment G. H. Q. was unable to give further help. The 5th Infantry Division was being transported northeast of Soissons, (from St. Quentin), but as enemy artillery soon began to shell the railway stations in that area, the troops were compelled to detrain in the Ailette valley. Their arrival was therefore postponed, which was most inconvenient.

Rushed Men, Not Supplies.

The 20th Inf. Div. could be concentrated at its destination by the evening of the 19th. Only the infantry could be brought up by lorries, without any horses or vehicles. Everything else was forced to march, so the division was completely broken up, the infantry being left no regular supplies. In the use of these divisions this point had always to be borne in mind. The divisions dispatched by the Army Group of the German Crown Prince could not arrive till later. They, too, arrived in lorries.

For the rest, we could only await the further development of the situation. The troops on the south bank of the Marne could not be handled [illegible] at a moment's notice. The order to retreat to the north bank on the night of the 20th and 21st July was cancelled, to avoid confusion. It would not do for the troops to be unsettled. For this reason we had to [illegible] our occupation of the sector [illegible] of Chateau-Thierry for a considerable time, in fact until we had evacuated the south bank of the Marne.

A stand southwest of Soissons and the Ardre was a necessary consequence. A crisis lay before us for the next few days, and until it was over great strategical decisions could not be taken.

Still Looked to Flanders.

The Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht (In Flanders) continued its preparations for attack. It had to [illegible] to relinquish certain divisions [illegible] even then an offensive was still possible.

For the time being I shelved my [illegible] concerning the 18th Army and the right wing of the 9th (on the south [illegible] of the Amiens pocket.) The [illegible] could not attack everywhere.

July 19 was a critical day, but it [illegible] fairly satisfactorily.

In the neighborhood of Soissons the [illegible] made no appreciable progress. [illegible] south, it is true, he crossed the Soissons-Hartennes road, but to[illegible] evening he was thrown back by [illegible] massed attack of the 20th [illegible] Division. This saved the situation there. Southwest of Hartennes [illegible] gained ground, but was unable to achieve anything decisive. [illegible] American attacks in the south, in the direction of Chateau-Thierry, broke down, as on the previous day. Enemy attacks south of the Marne, between the Marne and the Ardre, collapsed again and again. Local fighting took place in Champagne also.

On the whole, the situation was much more favorable. Even the remnants of troops who had allowed themselves to be surprised on the 18th had, generally speaking, recovered and fought well on the 19th.

On the 20th the 5th Infantry Division would be available southwest of Soissons and the new divisions in line on the Ourcq.

Explains Foch's Surprises

I inquired into the reasons for our failure on the 18th. The men no longer believed in the possibility of an attack. A Divisional Commander with whom I was acquainted told me that he had been to the front lines on the 17th, and had seen not the slightest sign of activity on the part of the enemy.

As a matter of fact, the French troops only received the order to attack a few hours before they came up. Information which was coming through to our lines until immediately before the battle began no longer reached us.

The rapid movement of the numerous fast tanks in the high standing corn increased the effect of the surprise. To all this must be added the diminished strength of the divisions, the result partly of influenza and partly of the monotonous diet. In the sector into which the two weak divisions had been put, there had been somewhat of a lull after the earlier battle. All these things helped to heighten the effect of the enemy surprise. When it had worn off on the 19th the troops held well.

The fact that particular divisions had not yet distributed their artillery in depth was of greatest significance. Once more they were too intent on following up the attack. This was very laudable in its way, but tactically unsound in their position.

The result of the surprise had been an over-hasty throwing in of reserves.

Withdraws Over the Marne

The battle between the Aisne and the Marne demanded unity of command, so the left wing of the 9th Army, south of the Aisne, was again put under command of the 7th.

At the points of greatest pressure, south of Soissons and southwest of Rheims, we were, on the whole, successful in repulsing, on the 20th and 21st, strong enemy massed attacks, in which tanks were again employed in large numbers.

The withdrawal of the troops south of the Marne to the northern bank took place during the night of the 20th-21st, and was effected in exemplary order. The fact that the French had not attacked here on 20th helped considerably. Their thrust early on the 21st found everything already evacuated.

Following the withdrawal of the German troops from the south to the north bank of the Marne, we straightened our lines between the Ourcq and the Marne and between the Marne and the Ardre, to secure local improvements in our positions.

On the 22nd there was a lull in the fighting. The enemy thrust was definitely held up. The crisis had terminated in our favor. G. H. Q. was at this time faced with momentous decisions.

The situation of the 7th Army in the Marne salient was grave, not only on account of the unfavorable shape of the front, but also because of the communications. Transport movement between the Aisne and the Vesle valleys hand been rendered unsafe. The railway curve east of Soissons was exposed to the effective fire of long range guns. The line in course of construction at high pressure further to the east was not yet ready and was in any case only a makeshift. The other means of communication were useless for moving troops.

New Troops Come Up Tired

Reinforcements for the 7th Army had therefore to be detrained in the Aisne valley or further north, and so were tired even before they reached the front. The necessity for continued relief was as obvious as it had been in the case of the Flanders and Somme battles. We had, in addition to other supplies, to send up immense quantities of ammunition and other war materials. The railway communications behind the lines could not cope with all this. Motor transport and rolling stock that would have made good this deficiency were not available.

We should have continued to be seriously handicapped in our struggle with an enemy who had the best imaginable communications at his disposal.

That our strategic position in this salient was a critical one went without saying. Every enemy success at Soissons or on the Ardre would have the most far-reaching consequences. It would not be possible to hold the salient permanently, and a new attack on Rheims seemed hopeless.

I sent officers, among them General von Lossberg, to the fighting front, to report on the position. The commanders and troops at Soissons were obviously under the impression of the battles of the 18th, and the feeding of our troops was everywhere described as very difficult. From a tactical point of view the forward zone system had not proved a success in these battles involving retreats, for its evacuation too easily caused disorder in the main line of resistence immediately behind it.

Decided on New Retreat

The descriptions given to G. H. Q. confirmed us in our resolution, to which we had come in the evening of the 22nd, to withdraw the troops on the night of the 26th-27th of July from the Marne to the Fere en Tardenois-Ville line. With that end in view I was naturally in constant touch with the Army Group of the German Crown Prince and the 7th Army.

Only a short stand was to be made on the line indicated. The enemy would renew his massed attacks. We had to make them very expensive for him. We had in view a withdrawal behind the Vesle of a straight line between Soissons and Rheims in the beginning of August, but before this could be carried out, the salient south of the Vesle, and especially the Vesle valley itself, had first to be cleared.

The masses of stores accumulated there were absolutely vital to us. Our front contracted as our retreat proceeded. We thereby accumulated reserves, but so did our enemy, who could use them for attacks elsewhere.

The serious weakening of the 18th Army and of the right wing of the 9th (east of Amiens) could now no longer be justified. It had to be made good by reinforcements. These could only be drawn from the Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht.

Gives Up Flanders Dream

The offensive in Flanders could not bring a rapid and decisive success. According to all indications, the enemy was ready for it. If he avoided the attack, as he had done east of Rheims, we should be unable to force a decision. If he stood firm, his numerous reserves were in a position to hold us up, as they had done on June 1 and 12 in the direction of the Compiegne.

G. H. Q. therefore decided to abandon this defensive. The Rupprecht Army Group was to stand on the defensive and to surrender reserves to reinforce the 18th, 9th and 7th Armies; this it was quite capable of doing. The necessary orders were issued. I had as yet no idea how, if at all, we should be able to recover the initiative after taking up the Vesle position.

The Army Group of Duke Albrecht was instructed to submit plans of an attack on its front. G. H. Q. suspended its instructions as regards the use of the forward zone on the front of the 7th and 18th Armies, and also for any future retirements.

On the 23rd there was again an extremely vigorous attack, which on the whole, was successfully repulsed along the whole front. During the next few days there were only local attacks which failed everywhere.

Pennsylvanians Attack

In the night of the 26th the withdrawal of the front north of the Marne was accomplished according to plan and in perfect order. In the next few days General Foch made further violent but unsuccessful attacks which cost us the loss of some small strips of high ground, northwest of Fere en Tardenois.

According to reports from the troops the enemy had suffered bloody losses. (The Pennsylvania troops were engaged here.) Of course very heavy demands were made on us, too. As had been the case in previous defensive battles, constant relief by new divisions was continually necessary.

The evacuation of the salient went on steadily, thanks to the splendid organization of the Army Group of the German Crown Prince and of the 1st and 7th Armies. The second railway line was now completed and made the work considerably easier.

In the night of the 1st and 2nd of August the front was withdrawn behind the Vesle, where troops in hastily prepared positions were ready for the enemy. The enemy followed close on our heels, and made a sharp attack on the line of the Vesle. He was everywhere repulsed. Our defensive battle of movement between the Marne and the Vesle was at an end.

The battle was a brilliant achievement on the part of the leaders and men concerned. The shadow cast by the events of July 18 had passed. After that day, in spite of the heavy demands made upon him, the German soldier had fought well, and felt himself a better man than his enemy. In some divisions there had certainly been unpleasant elevations. Among other thing, I subsequently received a report which threw a very grave light on the spirit of one of these divisions. I sent it to the 7th Army for further inquiry.

His Losses Very Heavy

As in every engagement the losses we had suffered since July 15 had been very heavy. July 18 and the defensive battles arising with it had in particular been very expensive, although we got our wounded back and did not lose any considerable number of prisoners.

The losses through the battles had been so heavy that we were compelled to break up about ten divisions, and use their infantry as reserves for others. The other arms were, generally speaking, not broken up. Those divisions that had been withdrawn from the battle, and other troops, were distributed behind the whole West Front.

This was the beginning of a vast railway transport movement. It opened at the end of July, and increased considerably at the beginning of August, and from that time onwards hardly every dimished. The troops, who were very much exhausted, had to be brought up to establishment, rested and given time to recuperate.

I had not succeeded in getting any clear idea of the enemy's losses since July 15, but considering the massed tactics of the Entente, they must have been high, and in no way less heavy than ours.

Calls Americans "Inferiors"

The armies of the Entente had also suffered; the battle had cost the enemy as much as it had cost us. The French had sent into action a remarkably large number of Senegalese and Moroccans, and had endeavored to spare their own people.

The six American divisions that had taken part in the battle had suffered particularly severely without achieving any successes. One division appears to have been broken up in order to bring them up to establishment. Notwithstanding the gallantry of the individual American soldier, the inferior quality of the American troops is proved by the fact that two brave German divisions were able to withstand the main attack made by very superior American forces for several days; and these two divisions, the 4th Ersatz and 201st. I had up till then considered no better than the average.

The losses sustained by the English an Italian divisions were also heavy.

In the meantime the Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht had prepared for the defensive, by relieving divisions that had been in position for a long period by others that had been intended for attack. Their battalions were fairly strong. Many divisions had not been in action since April. The 18th Army and the right wing of the 9th had also become stronger. At an earlier date the 18th Army had fought in the Avre success. One of the divisions there which was holding a wide front, had been driven back on the river.

The attempt to make the nations of the Entente inclined to peace before the arrival of the American reinforcements by means of German victories had failed. The energy of the army had not sufficed to deal the enemy a decisive blow before the Americans were on the spot in considerable force. It was quite clear to me that our general situation had thus become quite serious.

By the beginning of August we had stopped our attack, and had reverted to the defensive on the whole front. When the divisions that had taken part in the last attack had been rested, we would be able to make fresh decisions. A pause in the operations was nothing extraordinary; it had occurred after the cessation of the great offensive of the 21st of March, and again after the 27th of May. The fighting since the 15th of July had been no less costly than had those attacks. The desire for rest was as legitimate now as it had been then. Whether the enemy would let us have it was the question.

I considered that the enemy might either continue his attack on the Vesle towards which he was exerting an ever-increasing pressure, or that he might extend it to the area between the Aisne and the Oise, where, in expectation of an attack on our part, he had got together considerable forces. I also thought he might possibly make advances between the Oise and the Somme, perhaps near Albert and in the plain of the Lys, and, finally, in the Sundgau (Upper Alsace). But I further assumed that these operations would only take the form of isolated local attacks, for the enemy was also tired, and, on the whole, not less so than ourselves. And attacks did take place; that they subsequently developed into a great battle on the whole front was mainly due to the considerable success gained by the enemy on the 8th and 20th of August. These must have demonstrated that our troops were no longer what they had been, and invited him to continue the fight.

Ludendorff tomorrow tells of "The black day of the German Army in the history of this war," the defeat administered by Foch August 8, 1918, in the Amiens salient. He bluntly relates how his divisions were cut to pieces and how he had a desperate time in plugging up the gap made by the attack of the British and French.

YOUNGSTOWN HARDEST HIT

In the Mahoning Valley district, of which Youngstown is the heart, all reports that the strikers had achieved their most marked success. The strike leaders claimed that 55,000 men had quit work and their claims were supported by the fact that many large plants were closed, three in particular, which employ alone 16,500 men.

Plants which were still operating had admittedly greatly reduced forces.

The possibility of the spread of the strike to as yet unaffected plants was more threatening today. At the Bethlehem works of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, where 35,000 men are employed, the union leaders announced that no reply had been received to their request for a conference with the company officials and that preparations were being completed for calling out the workers.

At Cincinnati the executive board of the International Iron Molders' Union is in session and will decide what action will be taken by that body.

At Buffalo switchmen on the South Buffalo railway quit work when ordered to move cars into the Lackawanna Steel Plant.

RIOTING AT DIFFERENT POINTS

Rioting which broke out at the close of the first day of the strike was resumed at different points this morning. The known casualties so far are one man dead, three others so badly wounded that they may die, and scores more or less severely wounded. The fatality occurred in the Pittsburgh district. Every mill in Farrell, Pa., was closed this morning, but this did not prevent a renewal of violence in which 11 persons were wounded.

Simultaneously with the outbreak of rioting at Farrell, a pitched battle between mill guards and strikers took place at New Castle, Pa., in which 11 persons are known to have been wounded, two of them women. Three of the injured men may die.

The situation throughout the Pittsburgh district today was regarded as so menacing that reinforcements of state troopers were sent there from other parts of the state.

At Buffalo, where the great independent plant of the Lackawanna Steel Company has been forced to suspend operations, according to police reports, rioting occurred last night and was resumed this morning. The disorder here, however, was apparently not so serious as in Pennsylvania. The Donner Steel Company, a sister plant of the Lackawanna, announced that operations would cease tomorrow. Incipient rioting also was reported from Youngstown.

FATALITIES IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 23—The second day of the steel strike in the Pittsburg district was ushered in with both employers and union leaders claiming the advantage for their respective sides. Representatives of the companies announce that they are in better shape today to continue the operation of those plants which did not close Monday, while the union leaders declare that the strike is spreading and will cripple additional mills before night.

The Carnegie Steel Company, largest subsidiary here of the United States Steel Corporation, has closed several of its plants in the district, but according to an official of the concern, the situation as regards labor is improving, and the opinion was expressed that additional loyal workmen, who failed to turn out Monday, will be on the job today.

Disorders, some of a serious nature, marked the first day of the strike in the Pittsburg district. Two men were killed at Farrell, Pa., one during a clash between state police and local officers and a crowd of 1,500 persons near the American Steel and Wire plant. The other victim was murdered by a fellow boarder when he is said to have refused to go on strike. Two state troopers were shot during the Farrell outbreak, while seven persons were struck by bullets during a clash between mill guards and a crowd at New Castle, Pa. Other disorders occurred in the district, and many persons were slightly wounded.

55,000 OUT IN MAHONING VALLEY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 23—Quiet reigned throughout the Mahoning valley last night, where union officials claim approximately 55,000 men are on strike in the steel industry.

Only two of the big steel companies were making any attempt to operate this morning. They are the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and the Carnegie Steel Company. Both companies, however, admit they are badly crippled. The Carnegie company is expected to announce complete suspension at any time. Yesterday officials announced they would suspend unless more men reported for work. It is understood that the Ohio works of the company are completely down this morning and that the Union works are practically so.

It is understood that the A. M. Byers company, Girard, and the Trumbull Steel Company, Warren, have asked the national committee at Pittsburg for copies of agreements, and that they already have been mailed to them. Neither company is effected by the strike.

Railroad men who conferred with President W. G. Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Cleveland yesterday were advised that where they have agreements with the steel companies they should continue on duty, but that where no agreement is in effect the majority should rule. Most of the trainmen, union officials say, already are out.

ONLY INDEPENDENT MILL RUNNING

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—The second day of the nation-wide strike in the steel industry found all plants in the Chicago district shut down, except independent mills at Hammond, Indiana. Statements of industrial and labor heads still were at variance regarding the percentage of workmen who had answered the strike call. Labor leaders asserted today that more than 75 percent of the workers in the district have left their work, while company officials said the number who failed to report at the mills was not more than 20 percent of the total of nearly 90,000 men employed in the district.

SPRINGFIELD MAY BE AFFECTED

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 23—If the steel strike lasts two weeks, it is estimated that 4,000 men will be thrown out of employment in this city. This city is known as the largest manufacturer of agricultural implements in the world for a place of its size, and a majority of the companies are in need of steel at all times. The agricultural implement plants will be the first here to be affected.

It was believed that the second day's developments would tend to clarify at least that phase of the situation, however.

In this district the strike has developed no violence. At Gary, Indiana, guards escorted from the works men who had continued their employment and thousands of strikers about the gates did not menace them. At Gary some damage was reported as resulting from failure to draw liquid steel from furnaces.

MAY JOIN STRIKERS

A sympathetic strike of the members of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers in the Chicago district was regarded as a possible addition to the ranks of the steel mill workers who walked out. Engineers at Gary who left their work yesterday reiterated statements that they would remain out. On the other hand, H. M. Comerford, secretary of that union, declared that "even if this union had a personal grievance, it would not strike in the face of a request by the president of the United States that no action be taken until after he had opportunity to confer with the various parties to the controversy on October 6."

Mr. Comerford reviewed the attitude of the engineers' locals in various steel zones. At Waukegan, Illinois, and Youngstown, and Steubenville, Ohio, he said, the men are willing to work but the mills have been closed by the companies. At Gary, Indiana, and Joliet, Illinois, certain radicals have ignored the International officers' directions to remain at work, he said, and cannot be controlled. Throughout the entire Pittsburgh district and Pueblo, Colorado, Mr. Comerford added, the engineers have remained at work.

DISPUTE UNION CLAIMS

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23—Claims of union officials that twenty-five thousand men were idle here today in the strike of steel mill workers an increase of five thousand over their estimates of yesterday, was disputed by steel mill officials who deny that the walk-out is as complete as union officials claim and contend that actual strikers do not number more than forty percent of the union figures.

The balance of the men not at work at this time, they claim, are forced into idleness by the walk-out of their fellow-workers.

Ore handlers at two docks joined the strike last night with the result that two ore laden boats were detained here, according to union leaders who claimed that all local ore handlers would be out before the end of the day. H. M. Donovan, business agent of the ore handlers' organization, said that 250 of a total of 400 ore handlers had gone out at the five docks here.

An attempt was to be made to operate one plant tomorrow, it was learned when Otis Steel Company officials said that if police protection could be obtained, their plant would be opened and the mills started to work.

John B. Lennon, former secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor and now a conciliator with the United States department of labor, was here today but would not say what his mission was. He was to meet with union chiefs this afternoon.

How Signs Of Old Age Creep Into Your System When The Iron In Your Blood Runs Low

For Want of Iron, You May Be Old At Thirty—Nervous, Irritable and All Run-Down—While at Fifty or Sixty, With Plenty of Iron in Your Blood, You May Be Young in Feeling and Brimming Over With Vim and Energy

That Helps Strengthen the Nerves, Restores Wasted Tissue and Aids in Giving Renewed Force and Power to the Body. Physicians Explain Why Administration Of Simple Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Run-down People in Two Weeks' Time.

Old age has already sunk its talons into thousands of men and women who ought still to be enjoying the springtime and summer of life simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and thereby destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. You will find plenty of people at 40 who are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay while others at 50 are strong, active, alert and seemingly growing younger every year. One class withers and dies like leaves in autumn while the other by keeping up a strong power of resistance against disease may pass the three score and ten mark with surprising health, strength and vigor. But you cannot expect to look and feel young unless you have plenty of iron in your blood, and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to supply the iron deficiency in the weak, nervous and run-down so as to build them up into stronger, healthier men and women.

Many a man and woman who ought still to be young in feeling is losing the old time vim and energy that makes life worth living, simply because their blood is starving for want of iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Thousands are ageing and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying perfect health because anaemia—lack of iron in the blood—has fastened its grip on them and is sapping their strength, vitality and energy. But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy, rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

[Manufacturer's Note. Nuxated Iron which has been used by Dr. Sullivan and other physicians with such surprising results, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Fisher and Streich Pharmacy and other druggists.

CALIFORNIA NO LONGER HOSTILE

Wilson pointed out, Japan did the same thing at Kiachou that she did at Port Arthur. She drove her enemy out but she was induced to do so by Great Britain and France who needing her naval assistance in the Pacific promised by solemn treaty to give her all German possessions in China. Inasmuch as it was 11 p. m. in Los Angeles and therefore 1 a. m. Sunday morning in the East, the text of the Presidents speech missed the main editions of Eastern papers. So I quote some pertinent passages. After referring for instance to Japan's solemn promise to return Shantung to China as soon after that country ratifies the peace treaty, the President said: "Great Britain has not promised to return Wei-Hai-Wai. France has not promised to return her part. Japan has promised to relinquish the sovereign rights which were acquired by Germany for the remaining seventy eight of the ninety nine years of the lease and to retain only what other governments have in many other parts of China, namely the right to build and operate railways under a corporation and to exploit the mines in the immediate neighborhood of that railway. In other words she retains only the rights of economic concessionaires.

"Personally I am frank to say that I think all these nations have invaded some of the essential rights of China by going too far in the concessions which they have demanded but that is an old story and we are beginning a new story. In the new story we all have the right to talk about what they have been doing and to convince them by the pressure of public opinion that a different course of action would be just and right."

And in another place in his speech the President asked dramatically: "Let us put those gentlemen to their feet who are objecting to the Shantung settlement. Are they ready to fight Great Britain, France and Japan who will have to stand together, in order to get this province back for China? I know they are not. And their interest in China is not the interest of assisting China but of defeating the treaty. They know beforehand that a modification of the treaty in that respect cannot be obtained and they are now insisting upon what they know is impossible. But if they ratify the treaty and accept the covenant they do put themselves in a position to assist China. I am for helping China and not turning away from the only way in which I can help her. Those are the facts about Shantung. Doesn't the thing look a little different?"

It was not long after this that the crowd shouted, "shame" as the President outlined the argument of his opponents especially on the question of votes for Great Britain. Mr. Wilson again made a ten strike when he read from the treaty and showed that the assembly in which Great Britain has six delegates has no voting power except on the question of admitting new members and that for the most part it is a debating society. The President won his biggest applause as he asked the audience if after giving Panama and Cuba, countries especially under the influence of the United States, each a vote it would be fair to deny Canada a delegate. He paid tribute to New Zealand, South Africa, India and Australia.

"Why" he said, "When I was in Paris, the men whom I could not tell apart except by their hats were the Americans and the Australians. They both had the swing of fellows who say 'the gang is all here, what do we care?' Would you want to deprive these great communities of a voice in the debate? Why my fellow citizens it is a proposition which has never been stated because to state it answered it."

The President declared that the assembly was really powerless so far as action was concerned, that it was a debating forum, and that the council was the executive body and on that unanimous agreement, was always necessary and that since America and the British Empire had each one vote, no nation could compel the United States to take any action against her will.

Mr. Wilson has hitherto ignored Senator Johnson's argument that America is the only solvent nation, was about to go in partners with the bankrupt nations of Europe. But at Los Angeles, he struck away with unwonted fierceness at that suggestion.

"We are told," he said, "We are strong and they are weak, that we still have economic or financial independence and they have not. Why my fellow citizens, what does this mean? That means they went into the redemption of the freedom of the world sooner than we did and gave everything that they had to redeem it. And now we, because we did not go in so soon or lose so much, want to make profit of the redeemers. The thing is hideous. It is unworthy of every tradition of America. I speak of it not because I think that sort of thing takes the least hold upon the consciousness or the purpose of America, but because it is a pleasure to condemn so ugly a thing."

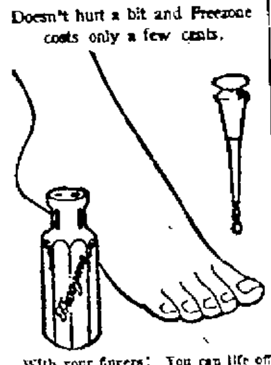

But if Mr. Wilson's explanations on Shantung and the respective powers of the assembly an council, or the question of deserting decrepit Europe were not sufficient to make his Los Angeles speech notable, his conclusion alone would have been enough. In a few sentences he practically apologized for his ill-fated appeal of last October for a Democratic Congress, a petition which was resented far and wide by the rank and file of the Republican party as a reflection on their Americanism. Mr Wilson was urging his hearers to make their impulses felt at Washington.

"I do not mean," he said "in any threat of political disaster. Why, my fellow citizens, may I indulge in a confidence? I have had men politically disposed say to me as Democrats: 'This is all to the good. These leaders of the Republican party in Washington are going to ruin the party.' They seem to think I will be pleased. I do not want to see the great Republican party misrepresented and misled. I do not want to see any advantage reaped by the party I am a member of because another great party has been misrepresented, because I believe in the loyalty and Americanism or high ideals of my fellow citizens who are Republicans just as much as I believe in those things in Democrats. It seems almost absurd to say that of course I do. When we get to the borders of the United States, we are neither Republicans nor Democrats. It is our privilege to scrap inside the family just as much as we please, but it is our duty as a nation in these great matters of international concern which distinguish us to subordinate all such differences and be a united family and all speak with one voice what we all know to be the conceptions of American manhood and womanhood."

The President was cheered for several minutes as he made that statement. But the speech was frequently interrupted by demonstrations. Mr. Wilson had come into what may have been regarded as hostile territory because Senator Johnson represented it in the United States Senate, but California is no longer hostile. It is preponderantly for the League of Nations, and whether Senator Johnson is busy next week or next month in the Senate, he will find California waiting for an explanation of his course in the present controversy. The men and women, and especially the women, are puzzled by Senator Johnsons' opposition. And my prediction is that long after the treaty has been ratified, Hiram Johnson will be explaining his attitude to his many friends in California who cannot now understand what happened at Washington or what company he kept in the Senate, that caused him to forget the proud boast that California is the most progressive state in the Union and that whether in domestic or international affairs he always recognizes the ideas that mean going forward, not backward in civilized society.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

STEEL STRIKE

Wire Company, both of which attempted to continue operations yesterday, shut down today. These two concerns employ approximately 10,000 men.

In the Chicago district similar conditions prevailed. Nearly all of the plants in that region, including Gary and Hammond, either were closed today or operating at greatly reduced capacity. The strike leaders claimed that 75 percent of the 90,000 workers were out and that in Gary the percentage was 95.

Bitro - Phosphate Is Food For Thin Nervous People

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

Frederick S. Kolle, M. D., Editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who" says that weak, nervous people who want increased weight, strength and nerve-force, should take a 5-grain tablet of Bitro-Phosphate just before or during each meal.

This particular phosphate is the discovery of a famous French scientist, and reports of remarkable results from its use have recently appeared in many medical journals.

If you do not feel well; if you tire easily; do not sleep well, or are too thin, go to any good druggist and get enough Bitro-Phosphate for a two weeks' supply—it costs only fifty-cents a week.

Eat less; chew your food thoroughly and if at the end of a few weeks you do not feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your nerves are not steadier; if you do not sleep better and have more vim, endurance and vitality, your money will be returned and the Bitro-Phosphate will cost you nothing. The Fisher & Streich Pharmacy.

IF YOU HAVE AN ERROR OF VISION

THE most important thing you have to do is to have it corrected. It is more important than business or pleasure. It is your most urgent duty. And it should be attended to with all promptness. You will work better, play better, and be happier after your eyes have been relieved of the strain by the proper glasses. We can supply them.

HON. RALPH D. COLE IS INVITED TO ADDRESS LOCAL WOODMEN AT BANQUET

What is expected to be the biggest night in the history of local Woodcraft will be the Home Coming for returned soldiers under the auspices of Portsmouth Camp, 3993, Modern Woodmen of America and which will be held at the United Brethren church on the evening of October 2.

Every member of the local camp has received a return postal card inviting him to the banquet which will be served in the basement of the church building. In round numbers one thousand invitations have been sent out, and the chairman of the banquet committee L. A. Zucker, announces that so far he has received but a few over 200 of the returned cards. The members are asked to return their cards by not later than Thursday evening of this week. By that time it will be necessary for the committee to notify the women of the U. B. church the exact number who will attend the banquet and no plate will be provided for those who have not notified the committee. The members of the camp should remember that the banquet is absolutely free to members. If you are a Woodman and have neglected to mail your card, do so at once. The banquet hall at the U. B. church is capable of seating 500 men.

The committee will hold an important meeting at the council chamber this evening at 7:30 o'clock and the program for the occasion will be worked out to the smallest detail.

Should present plans not miscarry it is planned to invite the general public to hear the address of Lieutenant-Colonel Ralph D. Cole, who will be the principal orator of the occasion, which will be delivered in the main auditorium of the church previous to the banquet. Lieutenant-Colonel Cole is one of the most prominent Woodmen of the state and he is regarded as one of the most noted speakers in the country. His message will be along patriotic lines and there is no doubt but the seating capacity of the church will be inadequate to accommodate all those who will desire to hear him.

At the conclusion of the address of Colonel Cole the Woodmen will adjourn to the banquet hall, where Rev. Charles R. Oakley will assume the role of toastmaster. Talks will be given by Ned Sherburn, of Newark, state deputy and a man who stands high in the councils of Woodcraft. Head Deputy Johnson, of Pittsburgh, will accompany Mr. Sherburn to this city, and his talk is anxiously awaited. Toasts will be delivered by Revs. Horst and Averitt, chaplains and loyal Woodmen.

Arrangements for the reception of the distinguished visitors of the occasion will be made at tonight's committee meeting.

They will visit at his home in Barnsville, Md., going to Washington, D. C., before returning home.

Mrs. Will Burke, 1720 Seventh street, who has been ill at her home for the past two days, suffering from heart trouble, is much improved.

Legion Of Honor News

The American Legion is an established fact. It is the concrete realization of "some sort of organization after the war" which was talked of in every cantonment, field and post in America, on board every ship in the navy and in every unit and section of the American Expeditionary Forces. It is the crystalization of the wish of every soldier, sailor and marine to organize. Americanism, comradeship and assistance are the main principles. "Policies, Not Politics," is the motto. The policies will extend only to the future policies of elimination of wars and preparation for trouble that may arise, legislation in the interests of ex-service men and assistance to men in securing insurance, compensation, back pay, etc.

May Engage Columbus Boxers

Promoters of the local Fellowship Athletic Club are making an effort to bring two Columbus fighters here for a ten round bout in Millbrook on Saturday night, October 4. The two best lightweights in the Capital City may be engaged. Young Dowley, brother of Bryan Dowley and Eddie Erb. They fought two exciting good draws in the past month.

BRIDWELL MAY BE HOME WEDNESDAY

Al H. Bridwell, whose Houston, Texas league team was the runner up in that league and finished second is expected home Wednesday or Thursday. His team made lots of money and Bridwly has been asked to return to Houston next year as he was a warm favorite among the fans of that city.

Committee Is Named For Union Township

Red Cross Home Service workers in Union township today were busy with the organization of the branch Home Service department there.

Joseph Peebles was made chairman of the committee, C. H. Crowder, secretary, John L. Wiley, Dennis Jewitt, U. S. Singer, and Mrs. John L. Wiley, members of the committee. The survey which is being made throughout the county in accordance with the nation-wide movement on foot in the Red Cross peace plans, is in the hands of these committeemen.

The organization of the townships of Scioto county is favorably commented upon in the Ohio district. An example of the excellent cooperation of the townships has been illustrated within the last few days when the trachoma clinic occasioned a call for school children in the county afflicted with trachoma. They were wanted to come to the clinic for treatment. Mrs. Columbia White, local executive secretary, got in touch with her township committees who personally arranged for transportation to the city of the children who were to attend the clinic. They were in the city Monday for treatment.

HAVE YOU SCROFULA?

Now Said to Be as Often Acquired as Inherited.

It is generally and chiefly indicated by eruptions and sores, but in many cases it enlarges the glands of the neck, affects the internal organs, especially the lungs, and if neglected may develop into consumption.

It causes many troubles, and is aggravated by impure air, unwholesome food, bad water, too much heat or cold, and want of proper exercise.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the medicine that has been used with so much satisfaction by three generations, is wonderfully successful in the treatment of scrofula. Give it a trial.

If a cathartic or laxative is needed, take Hood's Pills,—there is nothing better for biliousness or constipation.

World Will Sink Back Into Slough Of Despondency Existing Before War Unless Pact Is Signed, Says Wilson

(By Associated Press)

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 23—"The League of Nations is a guaranty of justice and without the treaty of peace with Germany including the covenant, 'the world would sink back into that slough of despondency which mankind was in before this war began!'" President Wilson told a crowd of 12,000 persons that surged about his special train when it stopped here for twenty-five minutes this afternoon.

The League covenant affords the only hope of China for the restoration to her of the sovereignty of Shantung, the president asserted. The president said the enthusiastic welcome was the more pleasing to him because it showed not only a desire to welcome him personally, but "interest in the great rights I have come out to advocate."

The departure of the train was delayed a short time because the crowd surged across the tracks in front of the train and it was difficult for the police to clear the way for the special to pull out. A large percentage were women and children. There was a delegation of red cross women and these presented the president with a basket of fruit. In it was a card signed "The American Red Cross," which read:

"Disputes should be adjusted by human reason instead of human strength."

The president spoke in response to repeated demands and after he and Mrs. Wilson had repeatedly smiled and bowed from the rear platform. One boy, apparently about six years old, attempted vainly to force his way to the platform calling out: "I want to shake hands with the president." Finally a man picked him up and he was passed over the heads of the crowd. The president shook hands with him and then patted him on the head before he handed him back to the nearest man.

DEMONSTRATION IN SENATE GALLERIES AFTER REED ENDS FOUR HOUR ATTACK ON LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—At the end of a four-hour attack on the League of Nations by Senator Reed, of Missouri, a Democrat who has refused to stand with his party for unreserved ratification of the peace treaty of which the League covenant is a part, the senate galleries late yesterday started a demonstration that had to wear itself out and then hissed violent disapproval when the cheering was condemned from the floor.

There has been no outburst like it since the treaty fight was put sharply before the senate by the foreign relations committee. But there were indications soon after Senator Reed began his speech that the crowds, swarming for admittance at all doors, were in sympathy with his arguments. Mindful of the evidence of feeling in the galleries Senator Cummins, president pro tempore gave warning that while applause might be tolerated, despite senate rules, but at the end of the addresses it would not be permitted at other times. Threats to clear the galleries if repeated had no effect and no attempt was made to force the long standing rule.

Men In Uniform Join

When Senator Reed, with arms lifted high closed his speech and sat down the applause broke, followed instantly by lusty cheering from every gallery. Men in uniform joined in the demonstration and many women stood, waved their arms wildly and shouted with the men.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, sitting nearest Senator Reed and first to congratulate him, shouted loudly for order a moment later and the crowds not knowing what to expect, suddenly became still. But the quiet order-lovers of the senate did not prevail long, for as the spectators realized that their conduct was being condemned a wave of hissing swept through the chamber, while gallery guards struggled manfully, but unnecessarily, to subdue and eject those responsible for it.

Nation's Fate At Stake

Still speaking to the crowds, Senator Ashurst declared the fate of the nation was at stake while they "were attempting to make the senate of the United States a police court," and appealed by name to Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, the party leaders to stop it. The Arizona Senator declared the galleries would not applaud a decision of the higher court, which had never been called upon to decide a question of such tremendous importance to the world.

The appeal was met with another volley of hissing, to which the Arizona senator replied that only snakes and geese hissed. Meanwhile the chair was pounding for order, and the crowds began filling out pell mell, while members on the floor were swarming around Senator Reed.

Lodge Finally Recognized

Senator Lodge finally was recognized above the hubbub which so rudely had shattered the dignity and traditions of the senate and leaning on his desk and stalling addressed the chair:

"In order to return to that serene and calm atmosphere described by the senator from Arizona, I move that we adjourn," and there was no dissent to the laughter of ayes.

How to deal with the conduct of the people who attended the senate sessions to hear the treaty debate was a question of some concern to senators, who discussed it informally in view of the events of the afternoon. Vice-President Marshall several days ago asked the senate if it desired enforcement of the rule against applause, saying if that was the wish it would be enforced.

May Close Galleries.

Treaties previously have been considered in executive session, but that custom was abolished so far as the pending part is concerned. The suggestion came from many members, however, that it might be necessary to close the galleries if another demonstration like that today was attempted.

Senator Reed, whose speech completed the whole treaty program during the day's proceedings had been speaking nearly two hours when the first applause came. This followed his reply to a question by Senator Lodge that brought the first stern warning from the presiding officer. Senator Reed while upholding firmly the ruling, expressed the hope that the senate would not be too severe on the crowds, because it was their only chance, he said, of expressing their opinions.

Making a purely vegetable Medicine

1875—1919

In 1875, Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., gathered and dried the roots and herbs which she used in the now famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, from the fields and forests,—then steeped them on her kitchen stove and filled a few bottles at a time, to alleviate the suffering of her women friends, neighbors and acquaintances, and the success of this medicine was unparalleled.

After 44 Years

These illustrations show the present method by which vast quantities of this well-known remedy are produced and from exactly the same kind of roots and herbs used by Mrs. Pinkham in the beginning.

First—The various herbs used are of the finest quality, and gathered at the time their medicinal strength is the highest.

Second—After the herbs are properly ground and mixed, the medicinal properties are extracted by soaking in large stone jars, covered.

Third—Then the extract is drained through percolators, acting somewhat like a coffee percolator.

Fourth—To insure a thoroughly pure medicine, it is carefully pasteurized by heat in special apparatus, and bottled hot.

Throughout the entire process, from the crude herb to the finished medicine in bottle, cleanliness and exactness are the watch-words.

The Reliability of Testimonials Guaranteed

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come to them unsolicited. Never knowingly have they published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without the written consent of the writer. The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness. It is easy to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

MISS DOLLY WISE

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—I only want your idea, what is the reason that a good Baptist christian doesn't like a good Holiness christian? I love both sides.

I think you are the only Christian of the two, then, for Christians love each other as the children of God. That is, they should. You will find it is a human failing to forget that love.

Dear Miss Dolly Wise—I am asking you for a little information. I am very fond of writing stories. Please print where I could send some stories and what they pay. Thanking you very much for any information.

DEMITRY.

If you are fond of writing stories, you are fond of reading stories and in that case you will know the style stories the various magazines accept. Some magazines cater to snappy, up-to-date love stories, some to children's stories of a more quiet strain. Some are conservative, some risque, so you can take your choice and decide which your stories are like. Then write to that magazine and send your story. If they accept it they will name the price it is worth to them. You should send type written copies, written on one side only. Send a self addressed envelope if you want it returned in case they cannot use it.

Dear Dolly—Why did the grand jury indict the doctors and overlook the plumbers? Dolly, what would you advise me to do when a plumber adds three and sometimes more hours to my bill, than he consumed from the time he left his office till he returned again. Would you pay it or would you refuse. Whom could this be reported to?

HELPLESS CITIZEN.

So you also have been in the clutches of a bandit! Go to the proprietor and complain. He will see the justice of it and make it right.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl twenty years old. My father is dead and I have a step-father. My mother is not like other mothers. She does not treat me as other mothers treat their daughters. We live out of town so I don't have many chances but my step-father and my mother will not let me go any place, or have any young friends, boys or girls. If a girl friend comes my mother treats her so coldly that it makes me feel badly. Then when the girl leaves she fusses because she was here. Very seldom do they let me have a boy friend.

If any boy does come, they fuss about it. Only yesterday a boy came to see me. This morning my mother made me cry about it. I never can get to a party or other places like other girls. I went to a party once and because it was eleven o'clock my mother fussed about it. I did not think eleven o'clock was so late to leave a party. Do you think so?

Really I don't know whom to blame more, my mother or my step-father. They are both so much alike in their ways. Sometimes my mother treats me so mean that I don't believe she loves me. On several occasions she has told me that she hated me.

I have one half-sister who is ten years old. They make a pet of her. I am kindhearted and like everybody and everybody likes me. My mother is cold and distant and seems to like no one, and, therefore, very few people like her.

I just feel as if you can advise me what to do.

MARY.

I do not like to advise girls to leave home, because they need the protection of their homes. I do think, however, that it would be better for you to find some place where you can be happier. If you try, you may be able to get a room with some good family where they will take an interest in you and give you some freedom, such as the privilege to entertain company, if you do not do it too often.

It is tragic that your mother has not given you the love which is your due. You however, can profit by her mistake, and, when you have children of your own, give them all the loving care and sympathy which you have missed.

I don't think 11 o'clock was too late for the party to break up.

Dear Miss Wise—I am seventeen years old and have known a young man for two years. He has been overseas and just returned. He wrote to me very often and since his return has told me he loved me. I went to his home later. His mother and I wrote to each other for a year and when I met her she treated me fine, but when she saw her son pay attention to me her treatment turned and I returned home sooner than I expected.

In his letter he wrote as he always did. Then he waited two weeks before answering one of my letters and thinking something wrong, I wrote again, but I heard from him before he got my second letter. He never answered my second letter. He apologized for not answering sooner and promised to write sooner afterward. I answered the letter and it has been over a month and I haven't received an answer from my last letter.

He spoke to me and wrote to me about getting married. I can't help but think there is something wrong. Do you think he means what he said? I can forget and never think of him, but his morals are so high I feel as if I am losing a very dear friendship which I would love to keep.

Do you think I should write again and ask for an explanation?

DOUBTFUL.

No, I would not write to the boy again, if I were you. He may answer your last letter, but I hardly believe he will. His mother must have convinced him that it is better not to write. He has probably taken this stand because both of you are so young and not because she dislikes you. Her treatment of you at first shows that he liked you as a girl, he did not want a daughter-in-law just yet.

Try to forget him. You will find other good and honorable friends, because you seem to be the kind of a girl to attract them.

Ethel Clayton's Beautiful Complexion

That splendid actress now appearing under the Paramount banner is famous for her beautiful complexion. She attributes her wonderful skin to the use of a simple toilet article called Dorcalin. There is nothing like it for tan, freckles, shiny nose, sallow, dark, rough skin. It takes the place of face powder, stays on better, as perspiration does not affect it, and it instantly beautifies the complexion. One application proves it. If you want a nice lily-white skin with rosy cheeks, get a bottle of Dorcalin today. You will be delighted. Dorcalin is sold at all up-to-date toilet counters. Be sure to read large announcements of Miss Clayton's soon to appear in this paper. It tells how to instantly have a beautiful complexion and a soft, white velvety skin everyone "just loves to touch."

This Is Miss Talmadge's First Picture e Made By Her Own Company For First National Productions, at The Columbia Tonight and Tomorrow.

The heartaches of a girl who wanted a husband who neither spoke to nor even looked at other women came in considerable quantities to Billie Billings, whose role is portrayed by Constance Talmadge in her latest picture, "A Temperamental Wife", which will be shown at the Columbia tonight and tomorrow.

There was only one man, Billie discovered who answered the very strict requirements of her "ideal", and that was Senator Newton, of Nevada, a rather sickly bachelor who was so bashful he couldn't shake hands with a woman without getting a quiver down the spine.

How the senator is moved to tears, fast action, and almost cruelty ends this story and also ends the jealous streak in little Billie Billings for all time to come.

"The Unpardonable Sin," the Biggest Production of the Year, Reproducing Rupert Hughes' Thrilling Story At The Columbia Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Surpassing in importance any previous moving picture event in the history of Portsmouth, will be the engagement of "The Unpardonable Sin," Harry Garson's extraordinary eple photoplay, starring Blanche Sweet, under the personal direction of Marshall Neilan, at the Columbia theatre, beginning Thursday.

Those who are familiar with the important books which have been published during the past couple of years will identify the big Garson picture as an adaptation from the powerful story by the same name, written by Major Rupert Hughes, which first appeared in serial form in the Red Book and was later published in book form to achieve a reputation as a "best seller," which has been surpassed by few novels offered the reading public. The story has been spoken of as one of the most powerful tales of love and adventure which has ever been written and reviews of the picture made by important critics throughout the country pay high tribute to Director Marshall Neilan when they say that here is one of the rare instances when the photoplay version is even more powerful and gripping than the original narrative.

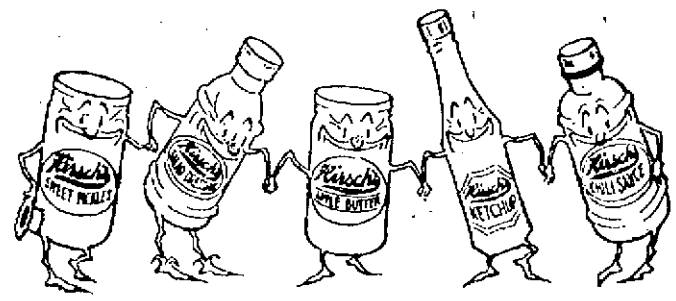

In support of Miss Sweet, Mr. Garson has assembled a cast of unusual strength, prominent among whom are Matt Moore and Wallace Beery.

GLADYS BROCKWELL—DIRECTION WILLIAM FOX

Is Woman's Brain Equal To Man's? This Question Is Answered By Gladys Brockwell In "The Forbidden Room" at The Strand Tonight

Gladys Brockwell, who has become famous for the emotional characters she has put on the screen, will be seen at the Strand tonight in the new Fox production, "The Forbidden Room." No role she has enacted has placed a severer a test upon Miss Brockwell's ability as does the character she assumes in this play, if one may judge by the outline of the story. Her part is that of an innocent young stenographer who is put in a trying predicament by men who take her employer, the district attorney. To save her own reputation and that of the attorney, she devises and executes a scheme whereby the corrupt framers are trapped and forced to confess their guilt. Every woman who is interested in civic betterment should see this picture tonight, for it carries a message that will not be forgotten soon. If you doubt what women can do in municipal betterment, just come and see "The Forbidden Room" tonight and change your mind. It's a play worthy of the consideration of every one. A Mutt and Jeff comic and a Strand comedy complete the evening's entertainment.

How D' Y' Do!

¶ Do you like good things to eat? Is water wet? One question is about as sensible as the other.

¶ Of course you like goodies. And of course you'll want to read the entertaining, appetizing things that Hirsch's Goodies will tell you about themselves in this paper.

¶ Yep! Sure enough! For instance, a spry young jar of Hirsch's Apple Butter, with limber legs and agile arms, will tell you in his own words how pleasantly he can tickle your palate.

¶ A fresh, wholesome chap named Hirsch's Ketchup will assure you with a broad grin that it's a hard job for other ketchups to "ketchup" with him, by gotly!.

¶ And a jar of Hirsch's Sweet Pickles, looking at you wisely through his specs, will advise you not to get into pickles but to get out-side of Hirsch's instead. Watch for him. Watch for all the members of the entertaining, appetizing Hirsch's Goodies family—aunts, uncles, cousins and all. They'll tell you some things that will make your mouth water.

¶ Then ask your grocer for Hirsch's Goodies—by name: Hirsch's Ketchup, Apple Butter, Sweet Picallette, Tomato Soup, Beans and Pork etc, etc, etc. And, yum, yum, how you'll love 'em all!

¶ Thank you!

Been Resident Of Ironton 40 Years

Mrs. Smith, Widely-Known, Praises Trutona To Her Many Acquaintances

IRONTON, O., Sept. 22—"I honestly think that Trutona is a wonderful medicine and I am recommend it to all of my friends who are suffering from troubles like mine," Mrs. C. Smith, 421 North Second street, said, recently. Mrs. Smith, who is 62 years old, has lived in Ironton for the past forty-two years and is well known here.

"My principal ailment was stomach trouble from which I have suffered a number of years," Mrs. Smith said. "My appetite was poor and the little I ate always resulted in my experiencing a heavy, bloated feeling in my stomach. I often had the headache and was usually constipated. I had become so nervous I couldn't sleep at night. I tried many different medicines but they didn't seem to help me.

"But that was before I found Trutona. I had been using Trutona only a few days when I noticed an improvement in my condition. Now, I can eat most anything without having trouble with my stomach afterwards. The heavy, bloated feeling has ceased, to follow my meals. My constipation has been relieved and the headaches I formerly experienced are things of the past. My food seems to taste better, too, and I'm at last able to sleep well at night."

Trutona, the perfect tonic, is now being introduced and explained in Portsmouth at Wurster Bros.' drug store.

6 No. 2 B. White linings
Warrant No. 1051	23.70

The above represents, in the main, the amount expended for grave equipment at the cemetery.

The audit of disbursements disclosed the payment of the following account:

July 31, 1918, The Portsmouth Sand and Gravel Co.

July 25, To 2 yds. Sand	$0.50
To 2 yds. Gravel	3.50	$7.00
Discount		.20	$6.80
Overpaid			$ .20

In making the above payment on July 31st, the discount of 20 cents allowed by making the payments before August 10th, remained undeducted, the company being paid for the full amount of the bill. In view of the facts as above stated we are herby rendering a finding for recovery in favor of the City of Portsmouth and against the Portsmouth Sand and Gravel Company in the amount of twenty cents.

The audit of disbursements disclosed the payment of the following erroneous account:

Jan. 31, 1917, W. F. Seymour, Hauling 3 cars slag.

N. & W. 53629—110900 @ 2cts	$22.16
N. & W. 55755—122300 @ 2cts	24.46
B. & O. 223304—122100 @ 2cts	24.42
Warrant No. 829	$71.04

In a comparison of the above weights, with the weights of the slag as shown in the account of The Standard Slag Company, it was disclosed that, in the amount of $2.26, the same representing an overcharge for 700 pounds in N. & W. car No. 53629, 500 pounds in N. & W. 55755 and 10100 pounds in B. & O. 223304, making a total overweight charge of 11300 pounds at 2 cents per one hundred pounds. In view of the facts as above stated we are hereby rendering a finding for recovery in the amount of $2.26, in favor of the City of Portsmouth and against Mr. W. F. Seymour. This amount should be immediately paid into the city treasury.

The audit of disbursements disclosed the payment of the following erroneous accounts for slag furnished the cemetery:

Oct. 15, 1917, The Standard Slag Co., Youngstown, Ohio.

9—25 N. & W. 55303 115000
9—25 N. & W. 52561 115200
9—26 N. & W. 52715 140500
9—26 N. & W. 55068 126000 —496700 @ 80 cts a ton.
Warrant No. 4996	$197.84

In auditing the freight bills for the above numbered cars, it was noted that a variation in the weight existed, the freight bills disclosing that an undercharge of 1.9 tons had been made by the Standard Slag Company on the four cars, thus indicating that they had been underpaid in the amount of $1.52, while in the payment of their invoice of November 2nd, through warrant 669, on January 31, 1918, it was noted that a charge for 113700 pounds was made for slag in N. & W. car No. 53859, while the freight bill disclosed that the said car contained but 101300 pounds thus indicating an overcharge for 6.2 tons at 80 cents per ton, in the amount of $4.96, thus making a net overpayment of $3.44 to the Standard Slag Company for which a finding for recovery is herewith rendered against it and in favor of the City of Portsmouth. Immediate efforts should be made toward the collection of this account.

The audit disclosed that there has been paid annually to the Herms Floral Company $20.00 for the planting of flower beds at the main entrance and the east corner of the cemetery.

It was noted that there had been paid the Times Publishing Company of Portsmouth, Ohio, on January 31, 1918, $2.43 for advertising but in rendering the account the Publishing Company failed to attach the proof of publication. In this connection we desire to call attention to the importance of having the proofs of publication attached to all advertising accounts. All such bills should be immediately returned to the Publishing Company for the attachment of such proofs and the director should not approve any bills which fail to have the same attached.

The audit of disbursement disclosed the payment of the following bill:

July 31, 1918, Remington Typewriter Co.

1 New Remington Typewriter No. 10 C.	$110.00
Credit Remington Typewriter No. 10	15.00
Warrant No. 1064	$95.00

The old typewriter was taken in exchange as a part of the purchase price of the new typewriter. The Attorney General has held that property belonging to the municipality can neither be bartered nor exchanged but must be sold in the manner as provided by law. In accordance with said opinion the above transaction is held to be irregular.

COMPENSATION OF EMPLOYES

September 6, 1916, council passed ordinance No. 2822 fixing the salary of grave diggers at $2.00 per day and laborers at $1.75 a day, however, the said provisions of the ordinance were repealed on November 21, 1917, through the passage of ordinance No. 2408, which provided in part as follows:

It will be noted noticed in passing the foregoing ordinance fixed the number of grave diggers to be allowed in the cemetery department, a duty which devolves upon the service director alone, the same being accorded him through the provisions of Section 1062 G. C. which provides in part as follows:

Two grave diggers	$2.40 per Diem
Laborers	2.00 per Diem

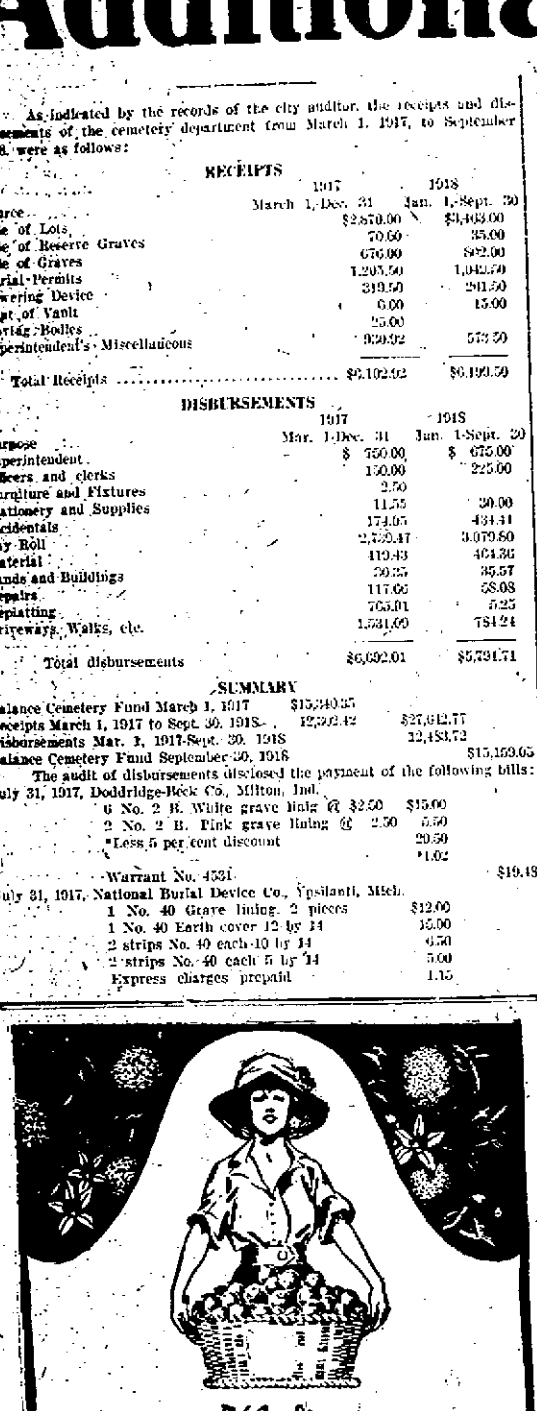

"The director shall ..... subject to the approval of the council, appoint necessary superintendents, employes, and agents, determining their term of office and the amount of their compensation."

In accordance with the provisions of the above section, council has the full authority to approve the compensation of the cemetery employes as fixed by the director, but they are without authority to limit the number of men such employes do work.

Through ordinance No. 2585, council fixed the salary of the cemetery clerk at $1500 per annum, thereby repealing that provision of ordinance No. 2822 which had previously fixed such compensation at $1500. Ordinance No. 2585 was passed and signed by the mayor on January 16, 1918, and became effective on February 15, 1918 or thirty days after its signing.

In auditing the payroll it was noted, that the increase in salary as provided therein had been paid the clerk of the cemetery from January 1, 1918, although the said ordinance was not passed until January 16th and did not become effective until February 15, 1918, or approximately six weeks thereafter.

In view of the facts as above stated we are hereby rendering a finding for recovery in favor of the City of Portsmouth against Mr. John Fritz in the amount of $1.00, the same representing an overpayment of $19.00 on January 31, 1918, through warrant No. 995 and $3.00 on February 28, 1918, through warrant No. 1022.

No Electric Fans in Aden.

Electric current for fans is not generally available in Aden, Arabia, and the old fashioned punkah system is the only relief from the almost unbearable heat and closeness of the atmosphere which prevails at certain seasons of the year, according to the Scientific American. A punkah is a large ceiling fan operated by a coolie who pulls a rope attached to it. This rope generally passes over a small pulley through a hole in the wall, so that the coolie may work unseen by those in the room to be ventilated.

Stewart And Sandow To Be Re-matched For Another Bout

Clever Pair To Return Probably In October

Promoters of the Good Fellowship Athletic Club are casting about for two classy boxers to stage a ten round battle in the Millbrook arena. The fight game is growing into popularity here, and the next one will no doubt attract fully 1,000 fans to the Casino. It is to be boarded up and heated during the winter and will make an ideal place to hold boxing contests.

Dr. J. G. Murfin, of the Hilltop, has been selected as the club's official physician and will examine all fighters.

The officials of the club announced definitely Monday night that Stewart and Sandow would be re-matched here sometime in October or November. They have fought their way into the hearts of local fight fans, and their next setto should be a corker.

Each declares he is the better man, and another rattling good mill may decide this. Both boys will weigh in at 124 and will receive a handsome guarantee. There are not many better scrappers in the game than these lads, and when they exchange wallops here again they are sure to be greeted by a record crowd.

Downey To Be Busy Boy

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—Bryan Downey, one of the foremost contenders for the world's welter weight championship is to be a very busy young man during the fall season, if matches that have been offered him are accepted by Manager Tom Jones. With the indoor season now in full operation, clubs in all parts of the country are bidding for the services of the Columbus boxer.

Friday night at Dayton Bryan is to meet Willie Laughlin in a 15-round contest to a decision and a week or ten days later he was a tentative offer to clash with Ted Lewis, former champion of the 145 pounds.

Great Year In Association

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23—The most successful season in the history of the American association will come to a close next Sunday, with the turnstiles showing a paid attendance well over the 900,000 mark. So elated are President Thomas J. Hickey and his associates that already they are talking of "next year," when many ambitious plans will be given a trial.

Only two of the eight clubs in the association will show a deficit for the campaign, it is believed, and in neither case will the loss be material. The owners of these two clubs, however, have no kick coming on the 154-game schedule, in fact, they are with the progressives of the league who already are boosting for a 168-game chart, the route the clubs batted over in the good old days.

No Saturday Or Sunday Games Seheduled For Redland

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23—The world series schedule as arranged gives Cincinnati games on Wednesday and Thursday, and possibly Monday and Tuesday. Chicago (or Cleveland) will have games on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and possibly the second Wednesday. The ninth game, if played, would be on the second Thursday, location to be determined. This only rain several days in succession could give Cincinnati a Saturday or Sunday game.

Seats And Prices Same

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23—Harry Grabner, secretary of the White Sox, says that his park will have 11,000 seats at $5.50 each, and 7,000 at $3.30 apiece, and that the whole seating capacity will be 34,820. While the exact figures of Redland Field seats have not been computed, it is known that they are approximately the same as those for the Chicago park. The one difference in prices is that the box seats at Redland Field will be $0.60. There are no boxes at the White Sox park.

Police Get Increase

HUNTINGTON, Sept. 23—The city commissioners yesterday voted satisfactory wage increases to members of the police and fire departments.

Police were accorded a $10 additional increase, and the firemen a $15 additional increase, equalizing the pay of both departments at $1200.00 per month for patrolmen. Officers get corresponding increases, and the chiefs of the two departments were raised to $175 per month.

YOST BEGINS 19TH YEAR AT ANN ARBOR

ANN ARBOR, Mich., September 23—Coach Fielding H. Yost will open his nineteenth year as a Michigan football coach October 4, when the Wolverine squad takes on Case in the opening game of the season.

In the 18 years Yost has been at Michigan he has hung up a record of games won and lost that is unequaled by any other big team coach in the country. From 1901 to 1918, inclusive, Yost's teams have played 132 games. They have won 124, lost 20 and tied 8, scoring 4704 points to their opponents' 300.

This record was made against first-class opposition. During the first five years Michigan played the strongest teams in the Middle West, to say nothing of the post-season game with Leland Sanford in 1901, when Sanford had won the championship of the Pacific Coast.

From 1906 until 1917, when Michigan was not a member of the conference, Yost's elevens played such teams as Cornell, Syracuse and Pennsylvania. In addition, Minnesota was defeated in two great games in 1909 and 1910, years in which the Gophers were sweeping conference elevens off their feet.

REAL MAT ARTISTS BATTLE THURSDAY

Joe Varga, who is matched to meet Young Herman, the middleweight champion of the country, in a finish match in the Jail over the Victory cafe, on Thursday night, is sparing no pains to put himself in prime condition for what he acknowledges to be one of the best matches he has ever had.

With long walks in the country daily, followed by a brisk run and a workout on the mat with Ed Smith, his trainer, and other local boys, Varga expects to go on the mat at 8:30 tomorrow night prepared for the battle of his life.

While he expects no easy victory over an opponent of Herman's caliber, he is quite confident of the final result, as he states he was never in better condition for a hard, grueling contest than at present. He intends to open a small gymnasium in Portsmouth and make this his home, but wants to thoroughly establish himself as an athlete of class before doing so.

Ladies are especially invited to attend this match.

Eddie Donalds Is Home

Concluding a successful year with the Waco, Texas league team Eddie Donalds arrived home Monday. He is looking unusually well and is being warmly greeted by his many friends here. As usual he pitched swell ball for Waco, which had a punk team and was down in the race all season. It is likely that Donalds will again spend the winter in Portsmouth.

McDermott Won Sunday

Sunday McDermott won a 4 to 3 game from the Lincoln Street Stars. The locals made their runs in the first inning on successive hits. McDermott scored three in the second on singles and a squeeze play. In the sixth they put across the winning run, when P. Jeanguenat tripled and came home on R. Ballengee's roller to the box. P. Jeanguenat secured a single, double and triple out of four trips to the plate. Akers and Branham made star captures of fly balls in the outfield. The box score:

Managers Chosen

An executive committee meeting of the Portsmouth High School Athletic Association was held Monday afternoon when the appointments of students' managers were approved. Richard Knost and Everett Scott were approved as Junior managers, and Fred Pride and James Scott as Sophomore managers. David Grimes is manager for the Senior Class, while the Freshmen do not have a class manager.

James Scott was elected cheer leader, with Seymour Bein as assistant. The application of Seymour Bein as basketball manager for this next season was rejected on the grounds that he was not a full-fledged Senior.

Double Waives Examination

Constable Frank Double, of Washington township, waived examination on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, Shirley Benson, when arraigned before Squire Byron yesterday afternoon and was bound over to the grand jury on his own recognizance.

Double shot Benson in the abdomen after the latter, it is claimed, had attacked and beaten him severely late Sunday afternoon at Natveo, the shooting being a sequel to some previous trouble between the constable and Benson's stepfather and mother, Andy Miller and wife, of Shib Run, over some road work.

Double was terribly beaten by Benson and he bore marks of the attack when he appeared in court.

There was little or no change in the condition of young Benson this morning and at the hospital it was stated he had spent a restful night. His condition is not regarded as critical, and barring complications, it is believed he will recover.

To Hold Art Exhibit

An art exhibit will be held in the corridors of the High School November 19-22.

Copies of four hundred of the world's most famous paintings will be on display and will be sold to any one wishing one for his own collection, the sum a donation to the High School. A small fee will be charged to witness this large collection, which will go toward purchasing pictures for the walls of the High School.

Thought One Clean Shirt All He Needed

"Ten years ago I was reduced to a mere shadow. I was yellow as a gold piece and would often be doubled up with most excruciating pains in my stomach. Physicians could only relieve me with morphine. I was advised to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it helped me at once. What is more, I have been well ever since. A friend said he thought one more clean shirt all I would ever wear." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Pianist And Minstrel Star Wed At Covington

A romance of seven years, involving love at first sight and many trials and tribulations of storied affection, came to light today in announcement of the marriage Sunday night, at Covington, Ky. of Miss Glenna Will 500 Washington street, pianist at the Sun Theatre to Harley E. Newland, of Springfield, minstrel star, late of the Al. G. Fields aggregation.

The wedding was a total surprise to friends of both Miss Will and the bridegroom, both in Portsmouth and in Springfield, in which latter city Mrs. Newland made her home until she came to Portsmouth four years ago to take charge of the Sun Theatre orchestra. Mr. Newland came to Portsmouth Friday, but, according to the newlyweds, it was not decided to be married until a few minutes before the train left for Covington Sunday.

The bride and bridegroom returned to Portsmouth Monday, but the fact of their marriage did not come to light until today. Mrs. Newland during the entire time she has been in Portsmouth has resided at the home of Miss Lula Conrad at the Washington street address. Until another musician can be engaged, Mrs. Newland will continue at the Sun. It is expected that her place will be filled within the next two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Newland will reside in Springfield.

Patrolmen Still Missing

Patrolmen Pearl Rickey and Noah Payne, under indictment for assault and battery upon "Red" Clifford, are still among the missing, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Dunham, who said this morning that despite his efforts he had failed to locate the accused men or even get a clew to their whereabouts. The two indicted officers have been away from their beats on the night force since the middle of last week, and it is reported they left town the night before the grand jury reported.

SUNDAY TIMES BRANCHES OUT; WHOLE SECTION IS NOW RECEIVING THE PAPER

In keeping with its policy of "Going Ahead" The Times has inaugurated an automobile delivery service as far as Jackson, O., for the Sunday Times, and also down the West Side as far as Buena Vista.

Long before daylight a Times automobile starts out each Sunday morning on the Jackson route. The first stop is at Sloeum Station. Then Scioto Furnace is served, then South Webster, Hales Clerk, Elliott and Firebrick, Oak Hill and Jackson. All of the papers on this route are delivered before seven o'clock, hours ahead of the arrival of any other Sunday paper, which insures that The Sunday Times, which already has a circulation of several hundred on this one route, will in a short time reach nearly every home.

By special arrangement Mr. J. H. Bean, who operates the Buena Vista bus, takes out the Sunday Times to patrons along his route. The number of papers he takes has been increased two and one half times in two Sundays.

Before this, trains had been taking the paper to towns along the Cincinnati and Columbus branches of the N. and W. and along the C. and O., while the traction and another Times truck served Sciotoville, Wheelersburg, and all towns as far as Ironton, where the number of papers sold so far has been limited only to the number that could be sent. The Times is now printing its own colored comic supplement, which insures it will always have enough to supply the demand, and can fill all orders.

The Times has said little of its plans preferring to wait until they had been carried out, rather than to make promises, but is now in a position to fill all orders from agents, in any section, who should, however, get in their Sunday orders by each Thursday.

PROVEN, BUT NOT ADMITTED

HERETOFORE, while praising the valor of American troops, General von Ludendorff has spoken ill of their fighting. boasting—that's the word—boasting, that they were no match for German experience and skill.

Yesterday, he sings a sort of different tune, as it were, admitting it was the Americans that smashed his third offensive and drove it back so furiously, that he had to give up as altogether hopeless a fourth attack, which was the one that lay back as the vital stroke of his military plans.

Still he is so reluctant to admit as much, to confess any error in his plans, so he says it was the French. It is known, however, that at the point where his line was first broken it was the Americans and the Americans alone, who did the fighting. The French were not engaged at all, having retired to let the Americans take over that particular sector, where the tides of war were sent roaring back to overwhelm the Hun invaders.

There was no fluke, as we say over here about the victory. Ludendorff admits he had his freshest troops, troops that had made themselves notable for their fighting and staying qualities, in front of the Americans and he had all that he thought necessary to an attack, which takes more than defense.

In dwelling on the events of this momentous occasion, Ludendorff enters his usual complaint and alibi for disaster, saying, "the love of talking and boasting inborn in Germans, betrayed to the world and to our enemies things of the greatest weight and significance." To that he might add that the inbred German militarist also has an inveterate habit of concealing the truth. He not only fails to give the Americans credit for beating his freshest and best troops on the ground and in the way chosen by him, but he is totally oblivious to the fact the Americans were not the freshest troops, though we have heard a claim or two they were the best—Marines, who were hurried to the front, after a long hurried drive of two days and a night and then hurled into the fray, after resting on the bare ground for a part of the night. Now, we have said it was the Marines that did all this, but that isn't exactly fair. The Marines alone and single handed were the first to stop the Huns, first to stagger them back, but the particular reverse we opine Ludendorff had in mind, was a bit later on and other American divisions—let us cautiously say, fresher and just about as good as the best, the Marines themselves; in fact at the distance we proud ones here at home couldn't see any difference—played a full and splendid part in the great exploit, that widened and grew bigger from day to day, until the hosts of right camped at rest on the banks of the Rhine, and the end to the world's frightful nightmare was at hand.

AS TO ONE POINT AT ISSUE

THE officials of the steel workers union have sent out a declaration reciting the grievances they strike to correct. In the main these are about the same grounds set forth in justification of every walkout, but the seventh and last is different.

This seventh ground alleged is an innovation, not only in the matter of strikes, but of its introduction into the laboring world. It is a rule, said to be fast working itself into industrial plants, calling for a physical examination, and therefore the attainment of certain physical standards, of the applicant before he is given employment. It is so new, at least in this country, that the effect of its operation is not within general knowledge. On its face, however, it seems plausible, even it might be a most desirable arrangement. Indiscriminate employment may often and seriously be injurious to workmen, although, on the other hand, fixing a standard might frequently work harm to individuals.

What is needed on the subject is enlightenment and it is likely that when the extent of the strike appears more clearly and the preliminaries are swept aside for the big struggle, the federation will present fully its contentions and the grounds therefor. Reversely the employers will present their side of the case and we will then have such data and argument as to form our own judgment as to this particular subject of contention.

Cincinnati finds automobiles getting so numerous that she is considering one way traffic for them on some streets. In this man's town they are getting so numerous that were the public safety ever considered they would not permitted to run on some streets at all.

Funny thing, that county board is going to make everybody healthy, if not wealthy and wise and yet we haven't heard a doctor opposed to it. Can't be they all want the job because some are making two and three times the salary thereto attached.

NONE EQUAL FOR THE MONEY

IT seemed like the town had only one purpose yesterday, a kindly desire to praise. Everywhere editors and reporters went on the street, the greeting was: "I want to tell you about what a fine paper you had Sunday."

We appreciate that, we like to hear the truth, when it is pleasing.

Sunday's Times was a good paper, every Sunday The Times is a good paper, as good as work and money reasonably and judiciously applied can make it.

We are not sure last Sunday saw any exception to the rule, The paper was more appreciated because it rained and so everybody stayed in and read it thoroughly, instead of hurriedly glancing it over before hurrying out to the automobile.

The automobile may be exterminating the horse, but it isn't doing the same, at least in price, with the Missouri mule. A Warrensburg a team of mules sold for $1250 at public auction and single mule after mule brought no lower than $423.

SHE MARRIED AN AVERAGE MAN

BY ZOE BECKLEY

I have been happily playing house sewing, cooking, entertaining a few of my Centerville neighbors. In short, enjoying the blissful novelty of being "just a wife". It's rather wonderful for a girl who has always been a slave to business hours to lie back against the luxury of leisure for a little. To go for walks. To potter over the marketing. All the things a business girl cannot do, and longs to do.

Today I accepted an invitation to Mrs. Wyeth's luncheon. The guest of honor was a woman from New York, who with a son of college boy age, is visiting the Wyeths.

I have never met a woman of her type before. I wonder if she is a true type, whether the "New York idea" is represented fittingly in her.

Her son, a stripling of nineteen, was conspicuously attentive. It puzzled me. I supposed he thought me an unmarried girl, invited for his benefit. So I spoke of "my husband." He was not abashed. On the contrary, when we sat about in the drawing room after lunch he became almost embarrassing.

"You mustn't mind him," his mother laughed, when, later on, he was out of the room and the ladies twittered me. "Every boy of his age falls in love with a married woman older than himself. It really seems as necessary an experience as breaking their collarbone in football, you know."

The indelicacy of it all put me quite at a loss. I made some rejoinder about New York's code of ethics being more advanced than Centerville's.

"Oh, dear me, yes," agreed the boy's mother with sophisticated vivacity, "I hardly know a married woman of any attractiveness who hasn't a lad or two on her string."

I should like to be able to record in my journal that I took an early leave of Mrs. Wyeth's party and hurried home, feeling much disgusted.

But I didn't.

They served some sort of orange punch that the butler passed and repassed. It made us all sociable and friendly. I found myself chatting animatedly with others, learning many things (which I now very much doubt the truth of) about New York—a city of dreams to me, as I dare say it is to any woman who has lived all her life in a middle western town.

Of a sudden I caught sight of the time. Quarter of 6! I was amazed and annoyed. I had come away early, without half putting my house in order or providing materials for dinner.

I rushed home, only to find Jim already there, with a man he had brought to dine with us.

"I telephoned you twice today, dear," he said in that repressed tone of a person more than ordinarily put out. "Where on earth have you been? This is Mr. Bolton, Ann—from our New York office."

The strangest feeling passed through me. It lasted only an instant, but it was just as if a voice somewhere inside my mind said, "New York! You have begun to learn about New York; well, you shall learn more."

I made my excuses somehow, though I was more than vexed with myself. I was ashamed. By dint of telephoning and some mighty quick thinking, I got together a dinner so good that it mollified Jim. Indeed, considering the circumstances, he was perfectly adorable.

I do not like this Mr. Bolton. And the strange thing is that I cannot say why.

I do not know whether it is that unaccustomed sort of party today. Or my flurry over the dinner, or this Bolton man's manner. Or just nerves. But I certainly have a strange, guilty sort of feeling. I'm glad to go to bed and feel that the day is over.

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Hell's Kitchen—where they beat up a copper just for fun and blackjacked strangers for a dime—has gone into decay. There has been only one killing there in a year. Thirty-Ninth street and Eleventh avenue was the sink of Hell's Kitchen. They used to say that only a cop without friends in the department got that beat.

The war brought about the reformation of Hell's Kitchen. The gangsters were all young men and those who did not skip to dodge the draft enlisted, as Ring Lardner says, in the draft. There was always something cooking in Hell's Kitchen.

Every night a gang of young cigarette smoking hoodlums would hang out on the corner—leaving only long enough to obey a whistle which meant that somebody started the "growler" for the Dutchman's. If nothing turned up they would start something—from upsetting the apple stand of some poor old woman to gang-beating a cop.

There was the typical instance of One Lung Curran, a rat-faced little dope fiend in the throes of tuberculosis. He came swaggering out of a neighborhood saloon one night and the gang hailed him with bravados. That was enough for One Lung—then fairly jumping with cocaine. He looked around and saw a policeman talking to a woman going home with the market basket.

He bet 15 cents he could take the policeman's blue coat home to his gal—girls are always gals in Hell's Kitchen—and he did by felling the policeman with a blackjack from behind and stripping him of his coat. All the while the gang cheered.

Curran's girl made a sort of military coat for herself out of the copper's uniform, and soon all the girls on Eleventh avenue were wearing the same kind of military conceit. The girls would send their fellows out to get policemen's coats, just to show that their love wasn't dead. But now the gangs have been broken up. Hell's Kitchen is as safe as Park Avenue.

It is quite astounding the way New York high-browns are falling for the songs known as "The Blues," to which the shimmy dancers do their most artistic wiggling. These fugitive songs of the underworld are actually finding a place in polite society. Several of the high-brow magazines are discussing them seriously. Nearly all came from the honky tonks of the Barbary Coast. Gilda Gray, who was the shimmying sensation of a Broadway show, is now the hostess at the Bal Tabarin, a stunty night life cafe. She is singing some revived "Blues." Here is a part of the lyric of one:

The graveyard is a nasty old place
They lay you on your back and throw dirt on your face.
Get over dirty!
Ashes to ashes and dust to dust
If the blues don't get you, will the shimmy must.
Step on it boys!

Why do people go to Maine on their vacations? The answer seems easy in the light of statements from home-coming vacationists. Maine, they say, is the wettest state in the union, whereas it is supposed to be the dryest. It is possible to get a jug of whiskey any place at any time, and they even deliver the whiskey in motor vans, according to some of those who are home—wildly anticipating another trip to Maine next year. Whiskey is said to be selling for $9 a gallon and there isn't the danger of wood alcohol poisoning that one runs up against here in New York.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

BISHOP CHARLES SUMNER BURCH.

REV. C.H. BURCH

Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, suffragan bishop of the New York diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, was recently elected bishop of New York at a special diocesan convention. He succeeds the late Bishop H. Greer.

The bishop of New York is to the church in the United States what the archbishop of Canterbury is to the church of England.

In the house of bishops his opinion carries great weight in the U. S. and abroad he is regarded as the representative man of the American church.

Bishop Burch has served as suffragan for nine years. For several years he was in the publishing business in Chicago. He was ordained when he was forty. He is sixty-four now.

While he was a deacon he was editor and publisher of the Grand Rapids Press. That was from 1897 until 1905. Then he became rector of St. Andrews' church on Staten Island. He remained there until named to aid Bishop Greer.

COX PLEDGES HIS SUPPORT

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—"I can bespeak fullest co-operation not only from the departments under my control, but from me personally," was the pledge given experts and members of the joint legislative committee to make a survey of state bureaus and departments with a view to co-ordinating them by Governor Cox here yesterday.

The governor declared that the agricultural scientific research work of the state should be under one head or one board.

Democratic members of the committee vigorously opposed a proposal to investigate the actuarial department of the state industrial commission. Completion of the survey of the various state departments is expected within three months, when a report will be compiled.

"WET" AND "DRY" COUNSEL ENGAGED IN LEGAL BATTLE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Lawyers representing the "wets" and the "drys" engaged in a legal battle before the Ohio supreme court today on the question as to whether there shall be submitted to the voters of Ohio November 4 a referendum on the act of the Ohio legislature in ratifying the national prohibition amendment.

Former Governor Judson Harmon, Lawrence Y. Maxwell and A. J. Freiberg, of Cincinnati, and Former Attorney General T. S. Hogan, for the "wets" argued in favor of the referendum, while Wayne B. Wheeler, James A. White and George Hawke, the latter plaintiff in the case and all representing the Anti-Saloon League, contended that no referendum could be held and asked the court to enjoin Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith from printing the referendum on the ballot.

Wets contended that if the referendum were held and the action of the legislature was upheld, no harm could be done. Drys contended it was a useless waste of public funds and asked that it be enjoined on this ground. The "wet" lawyers said that if the people repealed the act of the legislature then the ratification would be up to the next legislature.

It was contended by Wheeler and White that the resolution of the Ohio legislature permitting a referendum of federal amendments was unconstitutional and that the state cannot place restrictions on the exercise by the legislature of powers conferred by the federal constitution.

Harmon and Hogan argued that the people of Ohio have become a part of the state's law-making machinery through the initiative and referendum and therefore have the right to pass upon federal amendments.

FATAL RIOTING MARKS STEEL STRIKE IN PITTSBURGH BELT

FARREL, PA., THE SCENE OF OUTBREAKS

FARRELL, PA., Sept. 23.—More rioting occurred today in Farrell, where a man was shot and killed last night and several other persons injured. Many shots were fired in the new disturbance today. The police say that at least 11 persons were struck by bullets.

RIOTS AT NEW CASTLE

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 23.—With state constabulary 150 deputy sheriffs and scores of policemen patrolling the streets about the steel plants here, the situation following serious riots last night was slightly improved early today. Nine persons, two women and seven men were shot last night in addition to the stabbing of one policeman and injuring of another with a club in an attack on the plant of the Carnegie Steel Company. Three of the injured likely will die, it is said.

CROWD ASSAULTS WORKMEN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Disturbances which began in the vicinity of the Lackawanna Steel Company plant last night were continued this morning. A master mechanic was set upon by a crowd and severely beaten. A riot call brought out the police and two men were arrested, charged with rioting.

Switchmen of the South Buffalo Railway today quit work when ordered to move cars into the Lackawanna Steel Company's yards.

FATALITIES IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 23—The second day of the steel strike in the Pittsburg district was ushered in with both employers and union leaders claiming the advantage for their respective sides. Representatives of the companies announce that they are in better shape today to continue the operation of those plants which did not close Monday, while the union leaders declare that the strike is spreading and will cripple additional mills before night.

The Carnegie Steel Company, largest subsidiary here of the United States Steel Corporation, has closed several of its plants in the district, but according to an official of the concern, the situation as regards labor is improving, and the opinion was expressed that additional loyal workmen, who failed to turn out Monday, will be on the job today.

Disorders, some of a serious nature, marked the first day of the strike in the Pittsburg district. Two men were killed at Farrell, Pa., one during a clash between state police and local officers and a crowd of 1,500 persons near the American Steel and Wire plant. The other victim was murdered by a fellow boarder when he is said to have refused to go on strike. Two state troopers were shot during the Farrell outbreak, while seven persons were struck by bullets during a clash between mill guards and a crowd at New Castle, Pa. Other disorders occurred in the district, and many persons were slightly wounded.

55,000 OUT IN MAHONING VALLEY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 23—Quiet reigned throughout the Mahoning valley last night, where union officials claim approximately 55,000 men are on strike in the steel industry.

Only two of the big steel companies were making any attempt to operate this morning. They are the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and the Carnegie Steel Company. Both companies, however, admit they are badly crippled. The Carnegie company is expected to announce complete suspension at any time. Yesterday officials announced they would suspend unless more men reported for work. It is understood that the Ohio works of the company are completely down this morning and that the Union works are practically so.

It is understood that the A. M. Byers company, Girard, and the Trumbull Steel Company, Warren, have asked the national committee at Pittsburg for copies of agreements, and that they already have been mailed to them. Neither company is effected by the strike.

Railroad men who conferred with President W. G. Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Cleveland yesterday were advised that where they have agreements with the steel companies they should continue.

Local Plant Unaffected

Because there are no plants of the United States Steel Corporation in Portsmouth, there is little chance of this city being affected by the steel workers' strike that started Monday in plants operated by the corporation throughout the country.

Officials of the local steel mills see little prospect of a sympathy strike of the workers here. It is said that few of the men employed in the local mills are unionized, officials said Monday, and most of the men are satisfied with wages and working conditions.

At the local plant it was stated this morning that it was running full tilt in all departments and with every man on the job.

DEMONSTRATION IN SENATE GALLERIES AFTER REED ENDS FOUR HOUR ATTACK ON LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—At the end of a four-hour attack on the League of Nations by Senator Reed, of Missouri, a Democrat who has refused to stand with his party for unreserved ratification of the peace treaty of which the League covenant is a part, the senate galleries late yesterday started a demonstration that had to wear itself out and then hissed violent disapproval when the cheering was condemned from the floor.

There has been no outburst like it since the treaty fight was put sharply before the senate by the foreign relations committee. But there were indications soon after Senator Reed began his speech that the crowds, swarming for admittance at all doors, were in sympathy with his argument. Mindful of the evidence of feeling in the galleries Senator Cummins, president pro tempore gave warning that while applause might be tolerated, despite senate rules, but at the end of the addresses it would not be permitted at other times. Threats to clear the galleries if repeated had no effect and no attempt was made to force the long standing rule.

Men In Uniform Join

When Senator Reed, with arms lifted high closed his speech and sat down the applause broke, followed instantly by lusty cheering from every gallery. Men in uniform joined in the demonstration and many women stood, waved their arms wildly and shouted with the men.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, sitting nearest Senator Reed and first to congratulate him, shouted loudly for order a moment later and the crowds not knowing what to expect, suddenly became still. But the quiet orderliness of the senate did not prevail long for as the spectators realized that their conduct was being condemned a wave of hissing swept through the chamber, while gallery guards struggled manfully, but unnecessarily, to subdue and eject those responsible for it.

Nation's Fate At Stake

Still speaking to the crowds, Senator Ashurst declared the fate of the nation was at stake while they "were attempting to make the senate of the United States a police court," and appealed by name to Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, the party leaders to stop it. The Arizona Senator declared the galleries would not applaud a decision of the highest court, which had never been called upon to decide a question of such tremendous importance to the world.

The appeal was met with another roller of hissing, to which the Arizona senator replied that only snakes and geese hissed. Meanwhile the chair was pounding for order, and the crowds began filing out pell mell, while members on the floor were swarming around Senator Reed.

Lodge Finally Recognized

Senator Lodge finally was recognized above the hubbub which so rudely had shattered the dignity and traditions of the senate and leaning on his desk and smiling addressed the chair:

"In order to return to that serene and calm atmosphere described by the senator from Arizona, I move that we adjourn," and there was no dissent to the laughter of ayes.

How to deal with the conduct of the people who attended the senate sessions to hear the treaty debate was a question of some concern to senators, who discussed it informally in view of the events of the afternoon. Vice-President Marshall several days ago asked the senate if it desired enforcement of the rule against applause, saying if that was the wish it would be enforced.

May Close Galleries

Treaties previously have been considered in executive session, but that custom was abolished, so far as the leading part is concerned. The suggestion came from many members, however, that it might be necessary to close the galleries if another demonstration like that today was attempted.

Senator Reed, whose speech occupied the whole treaty program during the day's proceedings had been speaking nearly two hours when the first applause came. This followed his reply to a question by Senator Lodge and brought the first stern warning from the presiding officer. Senator Reed while upholding firmly the ruling expressed the hope that the senate would not be too severe on the crowds, because it was their only chance, he said, of expressing their opinions.

OPENING STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—United States Steel was among the few important issues to show an uncertain trend at the firm opening of today's stock market, reacting a large fraction. This was soon regained, however, on the strength shown by other favorites, especially equipments, oils, tobaccos and leathers. Before the end of the first half hour gains in Baldwin and American Locomotives, Mexican Petroleum and Texas Company, American Tobacco, Central Leather and various specialties extended from one to seven points. Trading was more active and broader than in yesterday's early period.

World Will Sink Back Into Slough Of Despondency Existing Before War Unless Pact Is Signed, Says Wilson

(By Associated Press)

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 23—The League of Nations is a guaranty of justice and without the treaty of peace with Germany including the covenant, "the world would sink back into that slough of despondency which mankind was in before this war began" President Wilson told a crowd of 12,000 persons that surged about his special train when it stopped here for twenty-five minutes this afternoon.

The League covenant affords the only hope of China for the restoration to her of the sovereignty of Shantung, the president asserted. The president said the enthusiastic welcome was the more pleasing to him because it showed not only a desire to welcome him personally, but "interest in the great rights I have come out to advocate."

The departure of the train was delayed a short time because the crowd surged across the tracks in front of the train and it was difficult for the police to clear the way for the special to pull out. A large percentage were women and children. There was a delegation of red cross women and these presented the president with a basket of fruit. In it was a card signed "The American Red Cross," which read:

"Disputes should be adjusted by human reason instead of human strength."

The president spoke in response to repeated demands and after he and Mrs. Wilson had repeatedly smiled and bowed from the rear platform. One boy, apparently about six years old, attempted vainly to force his way to the platform calling out: "I want to shake hands with the president." Finally a man picked him up and he was passed over the heads of the crowd. The president shook hands with him and then patted him on the head before he handed him back to the nearest man.

THEFT OF $240,000 BARED; THREE ARRESTS MADE; PART OF MONEY FOUND

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Three men, one of them John Wejda, clerk in the Chicago post office, who is said to have planned the robbery, were arrested here early today, charged with stealing $240,000 of a shipment of $415,000 last Thursday from the Federal Reserve Bank here to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, at Whiting, Indiana. Of the stolen funds $93,620 was recovered. The remainder according to an alleged confession of two of the men, was abandoned on the outskirts of Chicago, when the automobile in which they were returning from Whiting, broke down.

A "piece of police luck" is pointed to as responsible for the arrest of the men. Chicago city detectives unearthed the postal robbery when two of the men, Leo and Walter Philipps, brothers, 25 and 20 years old, respectively, were arrested in connection with the robbery of a saloon in which approximately $500 was obtained.

Prior to the arrests no announcement of the big hold-up had been made. Informed by a "stool pigeon" that the Philipps brothers were involved in the saloon robbery, which occurred later in the day, of the hold-up at Whiting, the officers at first believed they had stumbled on a big pay roll or bank robbery, when one found $20,000 in the older Philipps' pocket.

Questioning developed, according to the officers, details of the entire program.

FOURTH MAN SOUGHT

A fourth man, said to be the owner of a small farm near Chicago, was being sought early today. Police say they believe most of the missing money was buried on his property. He is said to have been at Whiting with the Philipps brothers. R. B. Mundelle and J. E. Sullivan, postal inspectors in charge of the federal investigation, said they believed Wejda sent a "fake" bag similar in appearance to the money bags in the consignment to Whiting.

"A man named Joe Schwarz, employed at the station, was to take the bags in a hand cart to the post office," the inspectors' said. "He got the wrong bag and took it to the post office, from where it was to be taken to the bank of Whiting and from there to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"When he returned to the station the bag containing the money, was gone."

The inspectors said Schwarz did not know the bag's content.

They believe Wejda so marked the bag that robbers could not mistake it.

ITALY DOESN'T WANT JOB OF SETTLING FIUME MUTINY; WANTS ALLIES TO TACKLE IT

LONDON, Sept. 23—Italy which was given a free hand to handle the problem arising out of the seizing of Fiume by Captain Gabriele D'Annunzio, as a domestic affair, is said in reports current here to have made an appeal to the allied powers to take the matter off her hands and send a force to Fiume to expel the insurgent troops from the city. It is claimed Italy has stipulated that if such a force is sent to the Adriatic city, it must not include Italian units.

It is improbable, according to report, that American troops will participate in such operation if it is ordered, there being no soldiers available for such purpose.

Reports from Fiume seem to be conflicting. One states that General Badoglio, deputy chief of staff, who was sent from Rome to deal with the situation, has established a cordon about the city, while the Jugo-Slav delegation in Paris asserts D'Annunzio forces have extended their zone of occupation, having advanced into Jugo-Slavia seven miles on Sunday. It appears, however, the reported blockade of the city is not particularly effective, it being reported a trainload of supplies has reached Fiume.

IRON MOLDERS WILL TAKE UP STRIKE PROBLEM

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 23.—"That is precisely one of the things that we will consider during our meeting," said Joseph F. Valentine, general president of the International Iron Molders' Union, last night, following the opening session of the general executive board, when asked what effect the steel strike would have on industries in which members of the Iron Molders' Union are engaged. The board expects to be in session throughout the week.

Stewart And Sandow To Be Re-matched For Another Bout

Clever Pair To Return Probably In October

Promoters of the Good Fellowship Athletic Club are casting about for two classy boxers to stage a ten round battle in the Millbrook arena. The fight game is growing into popularity here, and the next one will no doubt attract fully 1,000 fans to the Casino. It is to be boarded up and heated during the winter and will make an ideal place to hold boxing contests.

Dr. J. O. Murfin, of the Hilltop, has been selected as the club's official physician and will examine all fighters.

The officials of the club announced definitely Monday night that Stewart and Sandow would be re-matched here sometime in October or November. They have fought their way into the hearts of local fight fans, and their next setto should be a corker.

Each declares he is the better man, and another rattling good mill may decide this. Both boys will weigh in at 124 and will receive a handsome guarantee. There are not many better scrappers in the game than these lads, and when they exchange wallops here again they are sure to be greeted by a record crowd.

Downey To Be Busy Boy

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—Bryan Downey, one of the foremost contenders for the world's welter weight championship, is to be a very busy young man during the fall season, if matches that have been offered him are accepted by Manager Tom Jones. With the indoor season now in full operation, clubs in all parts of the country are bidding for the services of the Columbus boxer.

Friday night at Dayton Bryan is to meet Willie Laughlin in a 15-round contest to a decision and a week or ten days later he was a tentative offer to clash with Ted Lewis, former champion of the 145 pounds.

Great Year In Association

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23—The most successful season in the history of the American association will come to a close next Sunday, with the turnstiles showing a paid attendance well over the 900,000 mark. So elated are President Thomas J. Hickey and his associates that already they are talking of "next year," when many ambitious plans will be given a trial.

Only two of the eight clubs in the association will show a deficit for the campaign, it is believed, and in neither case will the loss be unusual. The owners of these two teams, however, have no kick coming on the 154-game schedule. In fact, they are with the progressives of the league who already are boosting for a 168-game chart, the route the clubs battled over in the good old days.

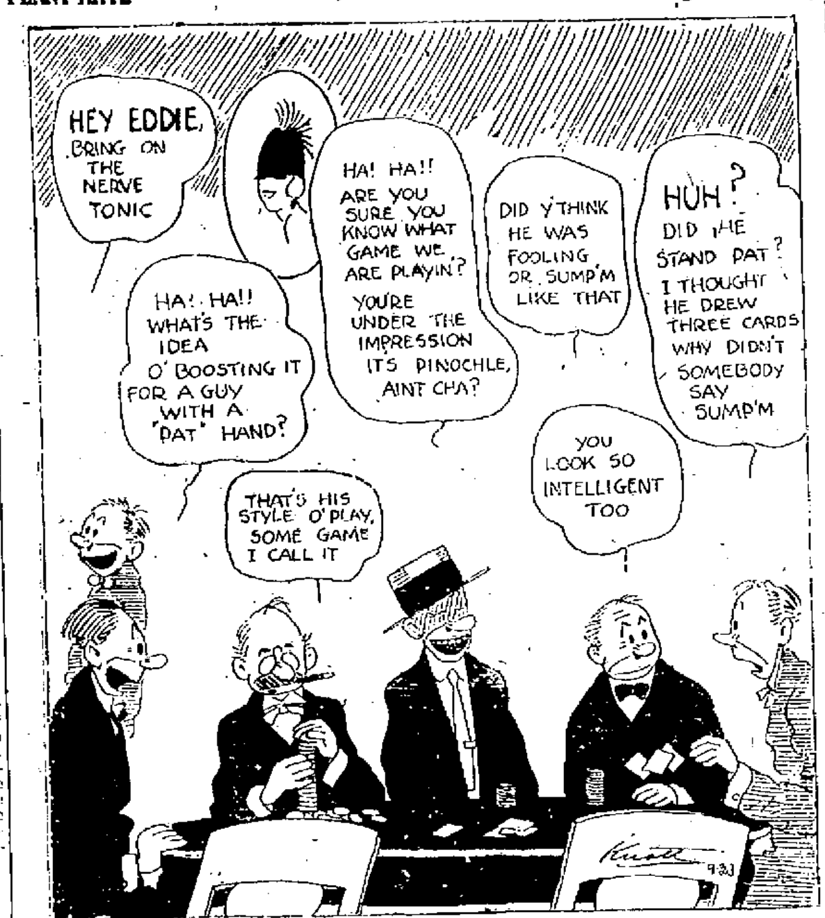

No Saturday Or Sunday Games Seheduled For Redland

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23—The world series schedule as arranged gives Cincinnati games on Wednesday and Thursday, and possibly Monday and Tuesday. Chicago (or Cleveland) will have games on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and possibly the second Wednesday. The ninth game, if played, would be on the second Thursday, location to be determined. Thus only rain several days in succession could give Cincinnati a Saturday or Sunday game.

Seats And Prices Same

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23—Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, says that his park will have 11,000 seats at $5.50 each, and 7,600 at $3.30 apiece, and that the whole seating capacity will be 31,520. While the exact figures of Redland Field seats have not been computed, it is known that they are approximately the same as those for the Chicago park. The one difference in prices is that the box seats at Redland Field will be $6.60. There are no boxes at the White Sox park.

YOST BEGINS 19TH YEAR AT ANN ARBOR

ANN ARBOR, Mich., September 23—Coach Fielding H. Yost will open his nineteenth year as a Michigan football coach October 4, when the Wolverine squad takes on Case in the opening game of the season.

In the 18 years Yost has been at Michigan he has hung up a record of games won and lost that is unequaled by any other big team coach in the country. From 1901 to 1918, inclusive, Yost's teams have played 152 games. They have won 124, lost 20 and tied 8, scoring 4,701 points to their opponents' 590.

This record was made against first-class opposition. During the first five years Michigan played the strongest teams in the Middle West, to say nothing of the post-season game with Leland Sanford in 1901, when Sanford had won the championship of the Pacific Coast.

From 1906 until 1917, when Michigan was not a member of the conference Yost's elevens played such teams as Cornell, Syracuse and Pennsylvania. In addition, Minnesota was defeated in two great games in 1909 and 1910, years in which the Gophers were sweeping conference elevens off their feet.

REAL MAT ARTISTS BATTLE THURSDAY

Joe Varga, who is matched to meet Young Herman, the middleweight champion of the country, in a finish match in the hall over the Victory cafe, on Thursday night, is sparing no pains to put himself in prime condition for what he acknowledges to be one of the best matches he has ever had.

With long walks in the country daily, followed by a brisk run and a workout on the mat with Eli Smith, his trainer, and other local boys, Varga expects to go on the mat at 8:30 ... night prepared for the battle of his life.

While he expects no easy victory over an opponent of Herman's calibre, he is quite confident of the final result as he states he was never in better condition for a hard, gruelling contest than at present. He intends to open a small gymnasium in Portsmouth and make this his home, but wants to thoroughly establish himself as an athlete of class before doing so.

Ladies are especially invited to attend this match.

Eddie Donalds Is Home

Concluding a successful year with the Waco, Texas league team Eddie Donalds arrived home Monday. He is looking unusually well and is being warmly greeted by his many friends here. As usual he pitched swell ball for Waco, which had a punk team and was down in the race all season. It is likely that Donalds will again spend the winter in Portsmouth.

WOMAN LANDS HUGE MARLIN SWORDFISH AFTER FIGHT LASTING OVER TWO HOURS

Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, unaided recently caught a 225 pound marlin swordfish after two hours and twenty-five minutes of work, during which she was towed from Seal rocks into Avalon bay, Catalina island. She says of her feat:

"The really thrilling part of the experience was the magnificent fight the big fish made. He made fifteen distinct runs, each time taking all the line. The last time it seemed as if he were making a straight dash for home, towing us nearly all the way into Avalon bay. That was a unique ride."

Mr. Field and Capt. Barney Halstead were with Mrs. Field at the time.

Cy Seymour Passes On

Cy Seymour, 42, former Red, great batsman, agile fielder and quaint character, has gone out at the bidding of the greatest umpire. The tall athlete died in New York City, after a long illness of tubercular character.

While with the Reds in 1905, Seymour hit .377, and led the National League. New York bought Seymour soon after this feat, paying $12,000 for him, and Cy was a star with the Giants till his health failed.

Police Get Increase

HUNTINGTON, Sept. 23—The city commissioners yesterday voted satisfactory wage increases to members of the police and fire departments.

Police were accorded a $10 additional increase, and the firemen a $15 additional increase, equalizing the pay of both departments at $130.00 per month for patrolmen. Officers get corresponding increases, and the chiefs of the two departments were raised to $175 per month.

PROVEN, BUT NOT ADMITTED

HERETOFORE, while praising the valor of American troops, General von Ludendorff has spoken ill of their fighting, boasting—that's the word—boasting, that they were no match for German experience and skill.

Yesterday, he sings a sort of different tune, as it were, admitting it was the Americans that smashed his third offensive and drove it back so furiously, that he had to give up as altogether hopeless a fourth attack, which was the one that lay back as the vital stroke of his military plans.

Still he is so reluctant to admit as much, to confess any error in his plans, so he says it was the French. It is known, however, that at the point where his line was first broken it was the Americans and the Americans alone, who did the fighting. The French were not engaged at all, having retired to let the Americans take over that particular sector, where the tides of war were sent roaring back to overwhelm the Hun invaders.

There was no fluke, as we say over here about the victory. Ludendorff admits he had his freshest troops, troops that had made themselves notable for their fighting and staying qualities, in front of the Americans and he had all that he thought necessary to an attack, which takes more than defense.

In dwelling on the events of this momentous occasion, Ludendorff enters his usual complaint and alibi for disaster, saying, "the love of talking and boasting inborn in Germans, betrayed to the world and to our enemies things of the greatest weight and significance." To that he might add that the inbred German militarist also has an inveterate habit of concealing the truth. He not only fails to give the Americans credit for beating his freshest and best troops on the ground and in the way chosen by him, but he is totally oblivious to the fact the Americans were not the freshest troops, though we have heard a claim or two they were the best—Marines, who were hurried to the front, after a long hurried drive of two days and a night and then hurled into the fray, after resting on the bare ground for a part of the night. Now, we have said it was the Marines that did all this, but that isn't exactly fair. The Marines alone and single handed were the first to stop the Huns, first to stagger them back, but the particular reverse we opine Ludendorff had in mind, was a bit later on and other American divisions—let us cautiously say, fresher and just about as good as the best, the Marines themselves; in fact at the distance we proud ones here at home couldn't see any difference—played a full and splendid part in the great exploit, that widened and grew bigger from day to day, until the hosts of right camped at rest on the banks of the Rhine, and the end to the world's frightful nightmare was at hand.

AS TO ONE POINT AT ISSUE

THE officials of the steel workers union have sent out a declaration reciting the grievances they strike to correct. In the main these are about the same grounds set forth in justification of every walkout, but the seventh and last is different.

This seventh ground alleged is an innovation, not only in the matter of strikes, but of its introduction into the laboring world. It is a rule, said to be fast working itself into industrial plants, calling for a physical examination, and therefore the attainment of certain physical standards, of the applicant before he is given employment. It is so new, at least in this country, that the effect of its operation is not within general knowledge. On its face, however, it seems plausible, even it might be a most desirable arrangement. Indiscriminate employment may often and seriously be injurious to workmen, although, on the other hand, fixing a standard might frequently work harm to individuals.

What is needed on the subject is enlightenment and it is likely that when the extent of the strike appears more clearly and the preliminaries are swept aside for the big struggle, the federation will present fully its contentions and the grounds therefor. Reversely the employers will present their side of the case and we will then have such data and argument as to form our own judgment as to this particular subject of contention.

Cincinnati finds automobiles getting so numerous that she is considering one way traffic for them on some streets. In this man's town they are getting so numerous that were the public safety ever considered they would not permitted to run on some streets at all.

Funny thing, that county board is going to make everybody healthy, if not wealthy and wise and yet we haven't heard a doctor opposed to it. Can't be they all want the job because some are making two and three times the salary thereto attached.

NONE EQUAL FOR THE MONEY

IT seemed like the town had only one purpose yesterday, a kindly desire to praise. Everywhere editors and reporters went on the street, the greeting was: "I want to tell you about what a fine paper you had Sunday."

We appreciate that, we like to hear the truth, when it is pleasing.

Sunday's Times was a good paper, every Sunday The Times is a good paper, as good as work and money reasonably and judiciously applied can make it.

We are not sure last Sunday saw any exception to the rule. The paper was more appreciated because it rained and so everybody stayed in and read it thoroughly, instead of hurriedly glancing it over before hurrying out to the automobile.

The automobile may be exterminating the horse, but it isn't doing the same, at least in price, with the Missouri mule. A Warrensburg a team of mules sold for $1250 at public auction and single mule after mule brought no lower than $423.

SHE MARRIED AN AVERAGE MAN

BY ZOE BECKLEY

I have been happily playing house sewing, cooking, entertaining a few of my Centerville neighbors. In short, enjoying the blissful novelty of being "just a wife". It's rather wonderful for a girl who has always been a slave to business hours to lie back against the luxury of leisure for a little. To go for walks. To potter over the marketing. All the things a business girl cannot do, and longs to do.

Today I accepted an invitation to Mrs. Wyeth's luncheon. The guest of honor was a woman from New York, who with a son of college boy age, is visiting the Wyeths.

I have never met a woman of her type before. I wonder if she is a true type, whether the "New York idea" is represented fittingly in her.

Her son, a sculpture of nineteen, was conspicuously attentive. It amazed me. I supposed he thought me an unmarried girl, invited for his benefit. So I spoke of "my husband." He was not abashed. On the contrary, when we sat about in the drawing room after lunch he became almost embarrassing.

"You mustn't mind him," his mother laughed, when, later on, he was out of the room and the ladies twitted me. "Every boy of his age falls in love with a married woman older than himself. It really seems as necessary an experience as breaking their collarbone in football, you know."

The indelicacy of it all put me quite at a loss. I made some rejoinder about New York's code of ethics being more advanced than Centerville's.

"Oh, dear me, yes," agreed the boy's mother with sophisticated vivacity. "I hardly know a married woman of any attractiveness who hasn't a lad or two on her string."

I should like to be able to record in my journal that I took an early leave of Mrs. Wyeth's party and hurried home, feeling much disgusted.

But I didn't.

They served some sort of orange punch that the butler passed and repassed. It made us all sociable and friendly. I found myself chatting animatedly with others, learning many things (which I now very much doubt the truth of) about New York—a city of dreams to me, as I dare say it is to any woman who has lived all her life in a middle western town.

Of a sudden I caught sight of the time. Quarter of 6! I was amazed and annoyed. I had come away early, without half putting my house in order or providing materials for dinner.

I rushed home, only to find Jim already there, with a man he had brought to dine with us.

"I telephoned you twice today, dear," he said in that repressed tone of a person more than ordinarily put out. "Where on earth have you been? This is Mr. Bolton. Ann—from our New York office."

The strangest feeling passed through me. It lasted only an instant, but it was just as if a voice somewhere inside my mind said, "New York! You have begun to learn about New York; well, you shall learn more."

I made my excuses somehow, though I was more than vexed with myself. I was ashamed. By dint of telephoning and some mighty quick thinking, I got together a dinner so good that it mollified Jim. Indeed, considering the circumstances, he was perfectly adorable.

I do not like this Mr. Bolton. And the strange thing is that I cannot say why.

I do not know whether it is that unaccustomed sort of party today. Or my flurry over the dinner, or this Bolton man's manner. Or just nerves. But I certainly have a strange, guilty sort of feeling. I'm glad to go to bed and feel that the day is over.

Shame, a sin?

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Hell's Kitchen—where they beat up a copper just for fun and blackjacked strangers for a dime has gone into decay. There has been only one killing there in a year. Thirty-Ninth street and Eleventh avenue was the sink of Hell's Kitchen. They used to say that only a cop without friends in the department got that beat.

The war brought about the reformation of Hell's Kitchen. The gangsters were all young men and those who did not skip to dodge the draft enlisted, as Ring Lardner says, in the draft. There was always something cooking in Hell's Kitchen.

Every night a gang of young cigarette smoking hoodlums would hang out on the corner—leaving only long enough to obey a whistle which meant that somebody started the "growler" for the Dutchman's. If nothing turned up they would start something—from upsetting the apple stand of some poor old woman to gang-beating a cop.

There was the typical instance of One Lung Curran, a rat-faced little dope fiend in the throes of tuberculosis. He came swaggering out of a neighborhood saloon one night and the gang hailed him with bravados. That was enough for One Lung—then fairly jumping with exercise. He looked around and saw a policeman talking to a woman going home with the market basket.

He bet 15 cents he could take the policeman's blue coat home to his cat—girls are always gals in Hell's Kitchen—and he did by felling the policeman with a blackjack from behind and stripping him of his coat. All the while the gang cheered.

Curran's girl made a sort of military coat for herself out of the copper's uniform, and soon all the girls on Eleventh avenue were wearing the same kind of military conceit. The girls would send their fellows out to get policemen's coats, just to show that their love wasn't dead. But now the gangs have been broken up. Hell's Kitchen is as safe as Park Avenue.

It is quite astounding the way New York highbrows are falling for the songs known as "The Blues," to which the shimmy dancers do their most artistic wiggling. These fugitive songs of the underworld are actually finding a place in polite society. Several of the highbrow magazines are discussing them seriously. Nearly all came from the honky tonks of the Barbary Coast, Ollda Bray, who was the shimmying sensation of a Broadway show, is now the hostess at the Bal Tabarin, a flashy night life cafe. She is singing some revived "Blues." Here is a part of the lyric of one:

The graveyard is a nasty old place
They lay you on your back and throw dirt on your face.
Get over dirty!
Ashes to ashes and dust to dust
If the Blues don't get you, well the shimmy must.
Step on it boys!

Why do people go to Maine on their vacations? The answer seems easy in the light of statements from home coming vacationists. Maine, they say, is the wettest state in the union, whereas it is supposed to be the driest. It is possible to get a jug of whiskey any place at any time, and they even deliver the whiskey in motor vans, according to some of those who are home—wildly anticipating another trip to Maine next year. Whiskey is said to be selling for $9 a gallon and there isn't the danger of wood alcohol poisoning that one runs up against here in New York.

Double Waives Examination

Constable Frank Double, of Washington township, waived examination on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, Shirley Benson, when arraigned before Squire Byron yesterday afternoon and was bound over to the grand jury on his own recognizance.

Double shot Benson in the abdomen after the latter, it is claimed, had attacked and beaten him severely late Sunday afternoon at Nauroo, the shooting being a sequel to some previous trouble between the constable and Benson's stepfather and mother, Andy Miller and wife, of Slab Run, over some road work.

Double was terribly beaten by Benson and he bore marks of the attack when he appeared in court.

There was little or no change in the condition of young Benson this morning and at the hospital it was stated he had spent a restful night. His condition is not regarded as critical, and barring complications, it is believed he will recover.

WATER WAS THREE FEET DEEP IN BLANKEMEYER HOME AT ARANSAS PASS, TEXAS, DURING HURRICANE

"We had to wear wet clothes for 48 hours and did not have anything to eat for 24 hours" writes Mrs. Anna Becker mother of Russell Becker of 924 Gay street who was in the home of her brother Dr. H. H. Blankemeyer in Aransas Pass, Texas, Sunday, Sept. 14 when a hurricane swept Corpus Christi and Aransas Pass, wrecking the homes and business places and causing death, suffering and huge property damage.

Relatives here who had been anxiously awaiting some word from Dr. H. H. Blankemeyer of Aransas Pass, Texas, since a telegram was received last week that his sister Mrs. Anna Becker and his daughter Ruth Blankemeyer, were leaving there for this city, were relieved yesterday afternoon when Russell Becker, received a letter from his mother Mrs. Ann Becker, explaining why they had not yet left Texas. The letter also contained some idea as to what damage was suffered by Dr. Blankemeyer and his family, in the hurricane.

In the letter Mrs. Becker explained that they had been unable to get away from Aransas Pass on account of railroad connections. She explained that the mail is brought to the city on horseback from the nearest railroad station which is some distance away.

Water was three feet deep in the Blankemeyer home during the hurricane. Furniture was damaged by the water and the oil which came on top of the water. Oil caused much damage during the big storm. Two houses which Dr. Blankemeyer owned and rented were swept off their foundations but the house in which he lived was not moved, the family escaping without injury.

The homeless lived 100 to a house, and Dr. Blankemeyer and family moved three different times to higher ground, the water coming much higher than expected. Only one life was lost at Aransas Pass, but hundreds were killed at Corpus Christi.

Aransas Pass is under martial law, while many Mexicans are being employed to clean the streets of the debris and wreckage. The many homeless are getting their food supplies from a rescue car, food being given out like in war times.

Mrs. Becker stated in her letter that she would be able to leave Aransas Pass in about a week and that she was coming alone, Dr. Blankemeyer having decided to bring his eleven-year-old daughter when he comes to Portsmouth later, after attending to his property.

TRACHOMA EXPERT EXAMINES EYES OF NEARLY 100 CHILDREN

With quietness and ease, and a kindness that won the children's hearts, Surgeon John McMullen, national trachoma expert examined the eyes of nearly 100 children Monday afternoon at the Gay street Dispensary. Several cases were treated. Dr. McMullen said as one of the little patients was lifted from the table where the treatment was administered, "Here's a little lad with well eyes. I know he will never be blind now."

One man who came to be examined was unable to see well enough to walk alone. He illustrated the ravages of the disease not arrested in its youth.

The children who are undergoing the treatment of the great surgeon, here to conduct the Free Clinic, will escape this fate of blindness.

Dr. Ross Hopkins assisted Surgeon McMullen in the treatment room. Miss S. A. Lant and Miss Zoe McCalib, nurses, who accompanied the specialist here are taking part in the clinic work. The Bureau of Community Service nurses are also on the job helping make the clinic a success. The county organization of the Red Cross Home Service department is responsible for the number of county people who attended the clinic. There were patients from Buena Vista, from other parts of the county, from all parts of the city. Miss Emma Hubert and Miss Myrtle Kepler, school nurse, and Miss Carrie Swearingin attended to the assemblage of the city children.

The clinic continues today, treatments and examinations being given each hour.

After treatments the children are taken care of at the Dispensary for a day after which they are taken to their homes and may return to school after a day or two. The treatment is not exactly compulsary and yet no child with the disease is allowed to attend school until they are cured beyond doubt. The spread is too serious a matter to allow carelessness in the matter.

These treatments not only free the children from a disease which might permanently destroy the eyesight, but also prevents the spread of the disease to others.

Some parents who accompanied their children to the clinic Monday after the examination by the expert would be unwilling to believe in the seriousness of the disease and some few left the clinic without accepting the chance to have their children's eyes saved from blindness by the great surgeon. The majority of people though appreciated the good fortune which brought Dr. McMullen to this city on his mission of healing.

Surgeon McMullen is very emphatic in regard to the contagious nature of trachoma. The disease is spread, he states, by the use of common towels, handkerchiefs, washbasins, bed linen, and other articles used in common. In school, children may contract the disease from these articles and also from the hands of children affected, for the latter are apt to rub their eyes and so soil the hands.

Parents with children whose eyes are affected and those who are thought to be diseased are asked to bring their children to the Gay street Dispensary for examinations.

The satisfaction of knowing whether or not the eyes were affected made the attendance at the clinic worth while.

Mattress Dealer Pleads Not Guilty To Charge

Charles F. Edwards, prominent Huntington business man, through Attorney Edgar G. Miller yesterday pleaded not guilty to the six indictments returned against him by the recent grand jury charging false labelling of goods and the unlawful sale of goods, and his trial was assigned for Tuesday, Oct. 7.

The indictments were brought at the instance of representatives of Attorney General Price in connection with the sale of mattresses to local dealers, it being contended by the state that the filling in the mattresses sold here by the defendant did not meet the requirements of the Ohio statutes. The case promises to be quite a legal battle and its outcome will be watched with much interest as it will set a precedent in the state.

on duty, but that where no agreement is in effect the majority should rule. Most of the trainmen, union officials say, already are out.

ONLY INDEPENDENT MILL RUNNING

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—The second day of the nation-wide strike in the steel industry found all plants in the Chicago district shut down, except independent mills at Hammond, Indiana. Statements of industrial and labor heads still were at variance regarding the percentage of workmen who had answered the strike call. Labor leaders asserted today that more than 75 per cent of the workers in the district have left their work, while company officials said the number who failed to report at the mills was not more than 20 per cent of the total of nearly 100,000 men employed in the district.

SPRINGFIELD MAY BE AFFECTED

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 23—If the steel strike lasts two weeks, it is estimated that 4,000 men will be thrown out of employment in this city. This city is known as the largest manufacturer of agricultural implements in the world for a place of its size, and a majority of the companies are in need of steel at all times. The agricultural implement plants will be the first here to be affected.

It was believed that the several day's developments would tend to clarify at least that phase of the situation, however.

In this district the strike has developed no violence. At Gary, Indiana, guards escorted from the works men who had confirmed their employment and thousands of strikers about the gates did not menace them. At Gary some damage was reported as resulting from failure to draw liquid steel from furnaces.

MAY JOIN STRIKERS

A sympathetic strike of the members of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers in the Chicago district was regarded as a possible addition to the ranks of the steel and workers who walked out. Engineers at Gary who left their work yesterday reiterated statements that they would remain out. On the other hand, H. M. Comerford, secretary of that union, declared that "even if this union had a personal grievance, it would not strike in the face of a request by the president of the United States that no action be taken until after he had opportunity to confer with the various parties to the controversy on October 6."

Mr. Comerford reviewed the attitude of the engineers' locals in various steel zones. At Waukegan, Illinois, and Youngstown, and Steubenville, Ohio, he said, the men are willing to work but the mills have been closed by the companies. At Gary, Indiana, and Joliet, Illinois, certain radicals have ignored the international officers' directions to remain at work, he said, and cannot be controlled. Throughout the entire Pittsburgh district and Pueblo, Colorado, Mr. Comerford added, the engineers have remained at work.

Patrolmen Still Missing

Patrolmen Pearl Ricker and Noah Payne, under indictment for assault and battery upon "Red" Clifford, are still among the missing, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Dunham, who said this morning that despite his efforts he had failed to locate the accused men or even get a clew to their whereabouts. PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO RAPE CHARGE

Vincent Winzsor, 25, Jackson street shoeworker, after his arrest yesterday on an indictment returned by the recent grand jury charging rape, pleaded not guilty when brought before Judge Thomas in common pleas court, and his trial was assigned for Friday next.

The alleged offense was committed May 31 last, and the complainant in the case is 15-year-old Nellie Bowman of Court street, who, it is said, Winzsor promised to marry, but instead married another girl a few days ago.

In default of $500 bond, the accused was sent to jail pending his trial.

When Albert "Catsy" Sly appeared in common pleas court yesterday and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with failing to provide for his two children, Judge Thomas sent the accused to jail pending an investigation of his case. Sly failed to give a satisfactory explanation of what he did with a roll of bills which he exhibited before his children a few days ago, but refused to divide with them.

ASHLAND MILLS RUNNING FULL TILT

ASHLAND, KY., Sept. 23—In view of the fact that the iron and steel districts of the United States are all affected by the big steel strike, interest in the eastern part of Kentucky centers in Ashland, where all plants are operating as usual and there is no indication of a strike.

The situation in Ashland district is peculiar at least in one respect. Most of the iron and steel workers in Ashland own their homes and are earning splendid wages and are thoroughly satisfied. As one of the steel workers said yesterday morning, he saw no reason why the steel workers in Ashland should become involved in trouble between the United States Steel Corporation headed by Gary and the workers of that organization.

PROSECUTOR GOING AFTER SPEEDERS

The prosecutor declared yesterday that speeding and reckless driving of motor vehicles must end in this vicinity, and he asserted that all offenders will be vigorously prosecuted. In the event the special officer is put on he will operate throughout the county, but his activity will be confined particularly to the three main roads leading from the city.

Girl Says She Was Locked In Room; Suit Follows

IRONTON, O., Sept. 23—Mrs. E. W. Bixby was yesterday made the defendant in a $5,000 damage suit filed by Hilda Calloway, a young colored girl who has been in the employ of Mrs. Bixby for the past several years. Miss Calloway is represented by Attorneys E. E. Corn and W. H. Mahoney.

The suit grew out of the mysterious loss of a bunch of keys to various locks of the Bixby home. Mrs. Bixby who was under the impression the colored girl knew of the whereabouts of the keys and in order to substantiate her impression, the colored girl, according to the petition, was locked in a room for half an hour by Mrs. Bixby in an effort to force her (Miss Calloway) to tell what had become of the keys. The plaintiff alleges that the experience she was put through injured her to the amount claimed, $5,000.

Legion Of Honor News

The American Legion is an established fact. It is the concrete realization of "some sort of organization after the war" which was talked of in every cantonment, field and post in America, on board every ship in the navy and in every unit and section of the American Expeditionary Forces. It is the crystalization of the wish of every soldier, sailor and marine to organize. Americanism, comradeship and assistance are the main principles. "Policies, Not Politics," is the motto. The policies will extend only to the future policies of elimination of wars and preparation for trouble that may arise, legislation in the interests of ex-service men and assistance to men in securing insurance, compensation, back pay, etc.
